Tories' Flag Split Widens

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative split on the flag issue widened Wednesday as Quebec leader Leon Balcer called on Prime Minister Pearson to invoke the often-darned closure rule to shut off the 30-day flag debate.

Mr. Balcer, who has disagreed publicly with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on federal-provincial relations as well as the flag question, electrified the Commons at the opening of the sitting by reading a blunt, 200-word statement in French.

He said the flag debate, dominated by English-speaking Conservatives who back the red ensign, has paralyzed Parliament and harmed national interests. If free speech was to be respected, the proposal for a maple leaf flag should come to a vote without further delay.

PARTY DISAGREES

Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill immediately said Mr. Balcer was not speaking for the party.

The Conservatives bitterly fought closure in the 1956 pipeline debate and made it a major issue in their successful election campaign a year later.

Creditist Leader Reel Caouette said he strongly supports Mr. Balcer's call for closure.

'INTERESTING'

The government did not comment in the Commons, but Mr. Pearson told reporters in his office later that it was "an interesting proposal, coming from the deputy leader of the opposition."

A government informant said closure has been considered and rejected. It was felt that it would be inappropriate.

A majority of the special flag committee recommended Oct. 28 that a single red maple leaf design be adopted as the Canadian flag. Debate on the committee report has taken precedence over all other Commons business for the last eight days. Earlier stages of the flag battle took up to 22 days last summer.

Stanley Knowles, NDP whip, moved Wednesday that the House set aside the flag question and switch to government bills, such as the labor code, but his motion was defeated 132 to 59.

'One White Note Worth Two Black'

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The foreign minister of the former French Congo accused Belgium, the United States and Britain of causing the massacre of "scores of thousands of blacks" to save

"an insignificant number of whites" in the Congo.

Charles-David Gnanou delivered a bitter attack against the U.S.-Belgian rescue operation launched from British-ruled Ascension Island. He said blacks had been murdered only for committing the "crime of being born in a country whose natural resources have become notorious."

Gnanou said that, as a child taking music lessons, he had learned that one white note was worth two black notes. Now, he said, "it seems that one white man, especially when he is called Carian and he is a Belgian or an American or Briton, is worth thousands upon thousands of blacks."

Gnanou's reference was to Dr. Paul Carls, an American medical missionary who was among the white hostages killed in Stanleyville Nov. 24 on the day of the U.S.-Belgian operation.

Liberation vs. Rescue Mission

Reds Demonstrate Against Tshombe

ROME (UPI) — Italian Communists staged a noisy demonstration Wednesday against Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe even before his scheduled arrival today in Rome.

They threatened more and violent demonstrations today when he calls for an audience with Pope Paul VI and talks with Premier Aldo Moro.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council rejected Wednesday a Soviet demand that it ignore charges by Congo Premier Moise Tshombe that some African countries, with Russian encouragement, were shipping military supplies to Congo rebels.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson countered immediately that the Russians were trying to erect a smokescreen against charges that Moscow was aiding the rebels.

Soviet chief delegate Nikolai Fedorenko did not deny the charges, but declared that the Soviet Union believed that the Congolese people were engaged in a "liberation conflict, a holy struggle."

FIGHTING IMPERIALISM

He said the Congolese rebels were fighting colonialist imperialism, in keeping with the basic principles of the UN charter.

After a long procedural wrangle the council decided by a vote of 7 to 4 to consider both sides of a dispute resulting from the recent mission undertaken by Belgian paratroopers in U.S. transport planes to rescue white prisoners held by rebels in the Stanleyville area.

VETO NOT USED

The four negative votes were cast by the Soviet Union, Morocco, Czechoslovakia and the Ivory Coast. The big power veto did not apply, since the vote was on a procedural matter.

In a move to head off any demonstrations, security guards barred the public from the galleries of the council chamber. There were reports that African nationalist groups in New

Rathie: New Term

Vancouver

Voters Defeat Coliseum Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — William George Rathie was elected mayor for a second term in Wednesday's civic election, but his plans for the city were chilled by the electorate.

The mayor's pet project, a bylaw which would have allowed council to give Toronto Maple Leafs two blocks of downtown land for an $8,000,000 coliseum, fell far short of the necessary 60 per cent majority required to pass. (See story Page 12.)

Former mayor Tom Alsbury ran second in the four-field mayoral race. Alderman Marianne Linnell—the only woman in the race—ran third and William Shenton ran last.

A ballot-suspended "five-year plan" for the city, which would have given council power to spend more than $48,000,000 in city redevelopment in that period, was defeated.

FOUR ELECTED

Also defeated was a plebiscite to use millions received from Ottawa when the federal government took over the Vancouver International Airport for centennial projects.

Apparently elected to two-year aldermanic terms out of a field of 14 were Ald. Hugh Bird, Ald. Earle Adams, Ald. Ernie Broome and former alderman Orson Benfield.

Misfire Delays Space Plan

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A last-second engine misfire on a Titan II rocket dealt a severe setback to the U.S. man-in-space program Wednesday, postponing the final unmanned launching of the two-man spacecraft until January.

The National Aeronautics

and Space Administration also said the delay will shave the first manned Gemini flight into the second quarter of 1965. The three-orbit trip by astronaut Virgil Grissom and John Young had been scheduled for the first quarter, in February or March.

The trouble occurred Wednesday 17 seconds after the Titan II booster engines ignited. Loss of hydraulic pressure caused one of the two engine nozzles to swivel out of place and the engines automatically shut down.

A space agency spokesman said one of the nozzle tubes received a slight crack as a result of the malfunction. He said the entire first stage may be replaced to assure proper performance in an effort to qualify the rocket for manned flight. He said extensive checking of all systems must be completed before a decision is made and a new launching date scheduled.

He indicated this by saying that Mr. Wilson's ideas on nuclear arrangements within the alliance are "Atlantic."

Asked whether Canada would be prepared to support Mr. Wilson's nuclear command concept, Mr. Pearson said he would want to know a lot more about the proposals before any decision was reached on what Canada will do.

At a separate meeting, External Affairs Minister Martin Patrick Gordon Walker discussed the same subject.

Canada has opted out of the U.S.-proposed NATO nuclear missile fleet but sources said this country is prepared to consider any appropriate proposals for modifications in this plan.

Sources stressed that Canada will not be involved in any nuclear scheme against its will.

"IT'S COLD!"

Mr. Wilson arrived here Wednesday from Washington with a booming "Hello, Mike" for Mr. Pearson, a long-time friend.

"God, it's cold here," he sang out as his hands touched the rails of the aircraft ramp leading from his BOAC Comet jet. The temperature was 1, a not untoward day for the capital in December.

Talks with Pearson

Wilson Plans NATO Meeting On Nuclear Arrangements

OTTAWA (CP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson plans to call for a special NATO meeting, possibly at ministerial level, to discuss new nuclear arrangements for the alliance, informed sources said Wednesday night.

Plans for such a meeting have not yet jelled, they said. Timing of a conference has not been decided.

Mr. Wilson and Prime Minister Pearson discussed for an hour Wednesday NATO nuclear matters and Wednesday night turned to bilateral and Commonwealth affairs.

Mr. Pearson indicated to reporters that Mr. Wilson would like to see Canada in any new NATO nuclear command which might be established. (See Page 23.)

Colonist 500 Fund

Veterans' Gift Replaces Usual Children's Party

The executive of the Victoria Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada has given a donation to The Daily Colonist 500 Fund instead of a Christmas party for members' children this year.

Secretary-manager John E. Radley said that in lieu of the party a donation to the needy would be made through the Colonist Fund and hampers would be sent as well to needy veteran members.

"May we wish you success with your venture once again, and for a bigger and better fund, herewith our cheque for $100."

Many groups, from Brownies to bridge clubs to employee organizations, have joined with the veterans in donations to the 500 Fund—as today's list of contributors further testifies.

Donations to date:

Hundreds and hundreds of individuals made a contribution Tuesday night when they brought a toy with them to the giant Kinamen Bingo in the Memorial Arena. The result — 2,500 toys for the 500 Fund Toy Auction, Dec. 18 at Maynard's auction rooms.

The toys were brought to Maynard's Wednesday morning by Art Kool of Reliable Transfer and are now stored on the second floor of the auction rooms at 733 Johnson.

Brooke Tomlin, manager, said Wednesday that he and his staff will take further donations at any time. "The more toys, the bigger the success."

All money raised by the auction will go directly into the fund—no service charges, no carrying charges, no auctioneer's charges.

The only "charge" associated with the fund is the good feeling received in helping those 500 families in the community who most need a boost at Christmas.

And the most direct avenue of help is a letter with a contribution to The Colonist 500 Fund, The Daily Colonist.

Two Found Dead, Man Shot

TERRACE (CP) — The bodies of a woman and a man with a string tied from his toe to a rifle trigger have been discovered in a motel cabin here.

The woman was identified as Rose Gertrude Johnson, 27, of the Hazelton area. The man was identified as George Franklin Kennedy, 50, a truck driver.

The woman's body bore no visible marks of violence. Police said the man died from a .22-calibre bullet in the head.

Sky Cop Thwarts Bank Bandit

ATLANTA (UPI) — A sky cop in a helicopter helped capture a bandit who bungled his second holdup of a bank that he had successfully robbed of $23,000 last June.

The trench-coat-clad gunman, identified as Keith Donald Moore, 24, of Atlanta, Wednesday took five hostages and tried to bluff police by threatening to blow up a school by remote control if anyone interfered with yesterday's attempt.

After his capture, Moore pleaded guilty at his arraignment in recorder's court to two counts of armed robbery. Wednesday's attempt and the $23,000 holdup last June 26.

During the bizarre attempt the trench-coat-clad gunman grabbed the hostages—two of them children—and led police on a wild 100 m.p.h. car chase through suburban streets.

All five of the hostages were released unharmed.

The end came for the daring bandit when air traffic Patrolman Joe Collins used his helicopter as a dive bomber to help box in the getaway car.

"We dived at the car, trying to harass the driver," Collins explained.

"A detective in an unmarked car managed to partly block the car. We landed behind the car, boxing it in, and the four of us captured him," Collins said.

Mrs. Suzanne Ingle, one of those taken hostage, identified Moore as the same man who robbed the bank of $23,000 last June.

U.S. Asks Russia To Cool Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk urged Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to use Soviet influence with North Viet Nam to stop Communist aggression against South Viet Nam.

As Gromyko went to the White House for his first meeting with President Johnson, U.S. officials said he took the position that the Vietnamese should be left to handle their affairs themselves without outside intervention.

'Reducing Tension'

Russia Cuts Arms Outlay

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Alexei Kosygin announced Wednesday a small cut in the publicly announced part of Soviet defence spending and said the United States has "made appropriate statements to us" indicating its military budget will be cut too.

The cuts "constitute a definite, positive step toward reducing international tension," Kosygin told the Supreme Soviet, Russia's parliament.

CRITICIZES MLF

He expressed willingness to solve problems with Western countries but reiterated criticism of the proposed North Atlantic Treaty Organization's multilateral nuclear force and issued a call for a meeting of the European Communist military alliance to consider it.

Kosygin was making his first major speech since replacing Nikita Khrushchev two months ago.

Neither Khrushchev nor his son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, occupied his seat as a deputy. Most of Kosygin's speech was devoted to a far more realistic appraisal of the Soviet economy than Khrushchev used to give in year-end economic summaries. Kosygin disclosed failures in both quantity and quality of production.

He continued the Khrushchev emphasis on more and better consumer goods and a rising standard of living, promising even faster progress toward a good life for Russia's 227,000,000 people.

Kosygin did not refer to the bitter dispute between the Soviet Union and China.

Kosygin said the defence budget for 1965 would be cut by 500,000,000 roubles ($555,000,000 U.S. at the official rate). This is 3.76 per cent less than the announced figure of 13,300,000,000 roubles ($14,780,000,000) for 1964.

In Washington, the Pentagon estimated U.S. spending of $49,473,000,000 for the fiscal year ending next July 1. Western analysts consider the announced figures to show less than half the true Soviet spending on defence.

Red Rebels Hit and Run

SAIGON (AP)—Repulsed in a three-day battle at An Lao, Communist Viet Cong guerrillas switched to raids and ambushes at a dozen other places in central South Viet Nam Wednesday.

Typical of the smaller actions was the Communist penetration of a garrisoned hamlet in Darlac province, plateau country 150 miles north of Saigon. The raiders captured 32 weapons and made off with 10 of the defenders.

The Viet Cong killed a U.S. infantry officer in an ambush on highway No. 1 in Phu Yen province, on the South China Sea 230 miles northeast of Saigon.

The rash of minor attacks broke out after government reinforcements helped a beleaguered garrison turn back several hundred guerrillas at An Lao, in a mountain valley of Binh Dinh province 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

Students Seek Corpse

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—A mob of about 1,000 students, enraged by the police killing of one of their colleagues, roamed the streets of Karachi Wednesday searching for the body of the victim.

The students defied a law banning public assembly to protest the fatal shooting.

The student was killed Tuesday night while demonstrating youths were stoning headquarters of the Pakistan Moslem League, the nation's ruling party, where police had taken refuge.

The students had been angered by Moslem League statements criticizing colleagues who have been on strike for nine days.

Saturday's Voting

SELDOM within recall have there been many more candidates, nor fewer divisive issues, than in this year's municipal elections in the Greater Victoria region. There is a wealth of potential council material to choose from on Saturday: nine candidates for four seats in Victoria; 13 for three in Saanich, six for three in Oak Bay, five for three in Esquimalt and in Central Saanich, and four contestants for two vacancies in Sidney. And generally, with the clash of old-guard and new-spirit philosophies in Saanich as an enduring exception, the aspirants stand for much the same things.

To make the voters' task more difficult, the array of candidates is of excellent calibre. There is none that can be dismissed as totally without qualification or lacking in constructive thought. The incumbents seeking to retain their places may have an edge on the challengers in the normal order of elections, by reason of greater public familiarity with their names. But the old adage about new brooms is always worth considering: experience in office is not everything, particularly if it has not disclosed ability or energy to match that promised by other contenders.

And, although the municipal scene is comparatively free of major dissension, there can be no doubt that in the two years during which the council members elected on Saturday will serve their fellow citizens before their seats are again in jeopardy, new issues of important consequence will arise to demand the best in clear thinking, knowledge and application to duty. The movement toward regional governance, in some respects, alone makes this certain.

Making the right choices at the polls, electing the persons most able to handle the affairs of the Greater Victoria municipalities in rational and progressive fashion, will this time call for greater than usual thought on the part of the electors.

Insulting

THE flag issue in Parliament is drawing to a close and the tenor of debate suggests that Mr. Pearson will have his way and a new national emblem adopted without the plebiscite by which this subject could have been most happily settled.

Party line being split because of the "free vote" which to a degree gives MPs licence to break party solidarity Mr. Leon Baker, chief of the Quebec Conservatives, says he will carry most of the Quebec MPs with him in voting for the maple leaf design.

That is their current privilege, as it is of all MPs to make their own choice even if some of them are bent on running counter to the majority views of the constituents they represent.

What is deplorable however is the term used by Mr. Baker when he says he will vote against the Union Jack: "I find it ridiculous and I hope the House will reject it."

If this is the spirit in which he has approached a subject that has disturbed the genuine convictions of many people, it certainly reflects the opinion voiced by another Conservative MP, Mr. Lawrence Watson of Amniboia, that "the only motive for a change now is to get rid of the Union Jack in the flag."

To cite as "ridiculous" an emblem the whole world has had cause to honor and respect and under whose protection this country was enabled to achieve free and independent status is to reveal an animus against the English-speaking heritage that is nothing less than insulting.

Mr. Baker is himself not only ridiculous but demeans his own stature and not the Union Jack by giving voice to such sentiment. His is a viewpoint also that will be distasteful to many honest proponents of a new flag, nor will it be forgotten.

Political Frankness

THE provincial NDP leader, Mr. Strachan, has advised his party that it must adopt more aggressive and frank attitudes, stating its aims bluntly according to its fundamental philosophies.

In short, to return to the character that was so marked a feature of its predecessor, the CCF party. Neither under the CCF nor the NDP banners has its socialist policies won general favor among the electorate excepting only one conspicuous term in Saskatchewan, nor does it seem likely to improve its position in this respect. But formerly it did win certain admiration for its forthright advocacy.

The CCF party nailed its colors to the mast and stuck to them. Like them or leave them it was faithful to what it stood for, and it made no bones about the measures it would introduce were it to gain power. There was no shilly-shallying or evasive gestures; it had a program and it did not hesitate to proclaim it.

Even among those who view full-scale socialism as detrimental to common weal and welfare there was respect for this positive statement of objectives.

Since the NDP took over from the CCF this is an image that has been blunted, and especially on the federal scene it has swallowed some of the principles previously espoused. This has weakened the party character and probably is what Mr. Strachan has in mind when he calls for the soft line to be replaced by a harder one.

The older major political parties could afford to take a leaf out of his book, to the extent of voicing their own platforms in unmistakable and clear-cut terms. So often they seem to appear as offering all things to all men, and they could with equal advantage adhere to their own policies made manifest without ambiguity.

And since they are the dominant preference of the nation they should be well able to match the NDP in the vigor and frankness with which they present the things they in turn stand for.

MR. GREGOIRE: . . . I told him once as recorded in Hansard—and if I quote Hansard, then it is not I who speak—that he had royally lied, and he did not object—

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sailing seas . . .

By TOM TAYLOR

THE population of the world, it is reported, should reach 4,000,000,000 by 1980. That is a lot of people. If you were packed in with them all you'd have claustrophobia.

We are used to statistics that deal in millions and billions, but even so this figure staggers the imagination. It can't quite be grasped.

A colleague with a better head than mine for such things illustrates the enormity by calculating that if that many individuals passed you in line at the rate of three miles an hour, you'd have to stand for nearly a hundred years, beginning the day you were born, to shake each hand as it went by.

And at the current rate of population increase, cited as 65,000,000 annually, you couldn't keep up with the procession if you lived to be Methuselah. You would fall years behind as time went on.

Like the infinite nature of the cosmos, its human inhabitants seem bent on proliferating themselves into infinity.

Three centuries ago some 545 millions were estimated to inhabit the earth, one-eighth of the total projected for 25 years hence, so what will another three centuries mean at the present rate of production?

Twenty years ago the Carnegie Institute estimated that some 30 billion people had lived on earth since the beginning of recorded history six or seven thousand years ago. Within that same 20 years the world has added about two billions to its total.

There is a fascinating and perhaps paradoxical future ahead for generations yet unborn, that much seems certain; a calamity inevitable, apart altogether from the nuclear threat to human destiny, unless the human race contrives a method of life at present beyond our conception.

The land area of the earth is big too. At present the human ratio runs about 90 persons to the square mile, but this includes inland waters and vast stretches of land currently inhospitable to life. These barren areas will be conquered and brought into use, doubtless, as human ingenuity and the mother of necessity brings this about.

But in spite of all it appears that humanity will force itself off the earth, given a continuation of its current rate of expansion.

In the comfort of Canada's puny human count (20 millions) and wide areas (13,500,000 square miles) yet awaiting exploitation the foregoing seems but an academic exercise, but even Canada a century hence will be a vastly different place. It will be caught up in the human stream that is bound to flow and overflow the boundaries of nations and peoples.

An increase of 65 millions annually in 100 years would of itself double the world's present population, set today at 3,283,000,000.

And just imagine if by that time every second person had an automobile!

We talk about there being scant room for cars nowadays, but the future suggests no room at all for the people who would drive them.

I am rather glad I live now and not a century or two hence.

From the Scriptures

Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.—Galatians, 5:1

Washington Calling

Hoping for a Miracle

By MARQUES CHILDS
from Nandipur, the Punjab

THIS is a big day in this dusty crossroads because the goats have arrived. They were flown straight from California to New Delhi, a journey of two days, and then 24 hours in a truck to Nandipur.

As the two Peace Corps young men take them out of their crates they look remarkably self-possessed. If they are surprised by their strange environment and the laughing, pushing throng of young villagers, some of them turbaned, others with tousled, long hair, they show no sign of it.

—26 in all when the second load arrives, the goats are part of an experiment in raising the level of breeding stock and demonstrating new methods of care.

In the same way Garry Harms of DeWitt, Neb., sturdy youth with a ruddy face, and Pat Canton of Et-and so harsh the traditions and customs of the past.

Yet the country and, more important, the people exert a kind of spell on the invaders.

Outside Ludhiana, the trading centre for this part of the Punjab, one of India's seven new agricultural schools has come into being. A thousand students are in classes in chemistry, biology, animal husbandry. A large experimental farm was created by the Rockefeller Foundation out of a waste of sand dunes and advanced students are working to get strains of wheat and millet better adapted to the region.

One of the contributions of AID (Agency for International Development) is a team of seven specialists from Ohio State University headed by Dr. Wilbur B. Wood. He is administrative assistant to the chancellor of the Punjab Agricultural University, Dr. P. N. Thapar. They have a close working relationship grounded in the need to graduate students who will work with the cultivators at a down-to-earth level where help is most needed. The model for the seven farm schools is America's system of land-grant colleges.

In India the states, in this instance the Punjab, provide most of the funds with help from the central government and American sources. And one goal is the extension service as it has developed in the United States.

Two hundred miles away is the great Bhakra dam, one of India's proudest achievements. Bhakra towers 530 feet above the gorge of the Sutlej River and when entirely completed will provide irrigation for 10,000,000 acres and 450,000 kilowatts of power. This largest irrigation project of its kind in the world is a prize example of Indo-American co-operation.

The designer and director of the project was the late Harvey M. Slocum who built Grand Coulee Dam. He worked with 300 Indian engineers and 40 American technicians.

As food shortages press hard and the newspapers report riots in the south and the possibility of rationing imposed over a long period of time, the need for more of everything is dramatized. Up to 80 per cent of the population lives off the land, probably the highest percentage in the world. The average plot is three acres or less and the forked stick that digs only three inches below the surface is in almost universal use.

With 350,000,000 people working at this level it is hard to believe that a rapid transformation can be achieved. But those who are grappling with it want to believe that small examples of what must be done, repeated many times over, will take hold and the miracle will happen while there is still time. It is the democratic example—by persuasion and co-operation rather than by force and coercion—that India offers to the world.

International Commentary

Senseless Policy

By ELIZABETH BARKER from London

LATEST developments in the aggression by Indonesia against Malaysia make it harder than ever to guess exactly what President Sukarno hopes to achieve by his "crush Malaysia" policy. This policy, however sharply in conflict with all normal rules of international behavior, might have some sense if it were producing any "successes" from the point of view of Indonesian nationalism. In reality, after 14 months, it has nothing to show but a series of failures.

President Sukarno's "confrontation" has not even begun to split Malaysia or to disrupt the new federation from within. Instead, it has welded the peoples of Malaysia more firmly together, and has perhaps had the effect of helping them to overcome their differences and to work together.

"Confrontation" has not won for Indonesia prestige or the admiration of world opinion, or that of other Asian nations. On the contrary, Indonesia is becoming more and more isolated from the rest of the world—except, of course, from Communist China, Peking, overlooking the hard treatment dealt to the Chinese living in Indonesia.

Finally, President Sukarno's attempt to crush Malaysia has achieved no military success. Its chief result has been the capture, or surrender, of a number of bewildered and disillusioned Indonesian soldiers and officers, who are now wondering why on earth they were ever sent into Malaysia.

At the same time, this policy has forced the young Malaysian federation to build up its military strength, with the help of its friends, far more rapidly and extensively than it would have done otherwise. Moreover, Malaysia's allies are preparing themselves to aid the federation still more effectively if the need should arise.

Nevertheless, President Sukarno has appeared to be determined to pursue his policy of confrontation to the limit. He has followed up his guerrilla assaults on the Borneo territories of Malaysia, his ceaseless propaganda warfare, and his subversive activities with attempted air and sea landings on the Malaysian mainland and in Singapore.

Ignored and flouted the Security Council's resolution, supported by all Afro-Asian members, deploring such actions and took no heed of the marked indifference and lack of sympathy shown by the Cairo's very big mistake.

The United States, despite her preoccupation elsewhere in the area, has offered military aid. When the Malaysian prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman, visited Washington last July to ask for aid in strengthening the federation's armed forces to resist Indonesian aggression, he was received with warm sympathy by President Johnson. As a result of that visit, an American mission has been visiting Malaysia and has offered aid in the form of financial help, buying American military equipment, especially jet fighters, together with specialized training for members of the Malaysian air force and army.

The total result of President Sukarno's policy has therefore been to rally the powerful support for the independence and integrity of Malaysia—and to isolate Indonesia. He has, clearly, made

Tel Aviv University

Dynamic Growth

By ELEANOR TEMPLETON from Tel Aviv

ISRAEL's newest institution of higher learning, the University of Tel Aviv, has risen to its new and promising estate by the force of its own momentum.

Like the city whose name it bears, its beginnings did not lie in a carefully conceived plan but in a need that had to be met. The city has grown into Israel's largest and most dynamic; the university may well do the same.

Tel Aviv's first big leap forward came at the beginning of November, with the dedication of its new campus on a 125-acre site on the outskirts of the city. Until then it had struggled along for six years in the Abu Kheir area of the city proper, holding classes in the natural sciences and humanities in a number of abandoned Arab buildings arid botanical and zoological gardens in an old orange grove.

During those years, despite the primitive facilities, the university's student body increased from around 500 to more than 3,000. The new campus will accommodate this number for the present school year. Yet 600 qualified students had to be turned away for a lack of space, 340 of them in the natural sciences.

At the same time, the 40-year-old Hebrew University in Jerusalem turned away 800 qualified entrants, while the Technion in Haifa (Israel's only university of engineering and technology) had to reject 250. In the Hebrew University's medical school, only 60 places were available for some 400 applicants. And the only other accredited university in Israel, Bar Ilan (supported by orthodox groups) turned away more than 400.

Indeed, in the opinion of one Tel Aviv University official, the student potential of the Tel Aviv alone is so great that if the university ran classes for 12 months of the year from morning to midnight, even this would not meet the demand.

Clearly, says TAU's president, Dr. George Wise, "We will not be competing for souls, but filling a gap. Denying the right of higher education to hundreds of qualified students every year would be a scandal in any country but it's particularly bad in Israel, a small country, poor in natural resources and more than ordinarily dependent for strength on its human material."

the conference of non-aligned nations.

He also ignored the practical support Malaysia has received from her friends, particularly the Commonwealth, and the moral support given at the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference. A Canadian defence mission has visited the federation to discuss aid. Australia has given most striking proof of its forward-looking determination to deal with the dangers created by Indonesian aggression. There are, of course, already British, Australian and New Zealand troops taking an active part in Malaysia's defence and now, for the first time in peace, the Australian government has announced plans to conscript men for two years' military service, including service overseas.

The Australian prime minister said that Indonesian attacks on Malaysia could create a real risk of war and that Australia must be prepared for all eventualities. The country is also increasing its military expenditure over the next three years.

Britain, which has been bearing the biggest outside share in the defence of the federation, will continue this course under the new Labor government. Mr. Harold Wilson, the prime minister, has told the House of Commons that he has plans for increasing Britain's effectiveness in areas other than Europe, including her ability to help Malaysia in resisting invasion and aggression. We need, Mr. Wilson said, to ensure that we have the strength and mobility more quickly to stop small troubles from escalating into bigger ones, especially where the interests of our Commonwealth partners are involved.

The United States, despite her preoccupation elsewhere in the area, has offered military aid. When the Malaysian prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman, visited Washington last July to ask for aid in strengthening the federation's armed forces to resist Indonesian aggression, he was received with warm sympathy by President Johnson. As a result of that visit, an American mission has been visiting Malaysia and has offered aid in the form of financial help, buying American military equipment, especially jet fighters, together with specialized training for members of the Malaysian air force and army.

The total result of President Sukarno's policy has therefore been to rally the powerful support for the independence and integrity of Malaysia—and to isolate Indonesia. He has, clearly, made successful enterprises in the U.S., Mexico and Canada, assumed the presidency of TAU in 1963. Since that time he has raised $6,500,000 for the university and mobilized most of its rapidly expanding teaching staff.

Many faculty members were recruited from Israelis who received their academic degrees abroad and remained there for lack of teaching positions and research facilities in Israel.

Among these is the noted physicist, Dr. Yuval Ne'eman, a second-generation Israeli who achieved fame this year for his part in the discovery of the subatomic particle, omega-minus. Dr. Ne'eman will be deputy rector of TAU and head of the physics department.

Other Israeli scientists will come to TAU from the University of California, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Chicago, Columbia University and similar institutions.

Dr. Wise found that all the Israelis he approached abroad expressed readiness to return to Israel regardless of the much lower salaries they can earn here.

Their principal demand is for housing, which the university is building for them near the campus. Some $100,000 in research equipment has also been allotted each academic during his first three years at the university.

"But, vital as research is, the emphasis will be on teaching," says Dr. Wise. "There will be no pressure on instructors or professors to publish."

"We'll be pleased with any distinctions they achieve in research, but first consideration will go to building up a teaching tradition based on a warm, close relationship between teacher and student."

In all, Tel Aviv University will erect 21 buildings at a cost of 25 million dollars, designed to accommodate a student body of 10,000. Six major structures will be completed by the end of 1964 and eight more in 1965.

When the present master plan is completed by the end of 1966 the university will have at least five main facilities divided into some 30 distinctive departments. These will include a full-fledged medical school and faculties in the humanities, social sciences, finance and business administration, art, music and mass communications, including a school of journalism with departments in radio, television and film production.

Economic Ills Dictate Kremlin's New Policy

By ERNEST CONINE

The Supreme Soviet of the USSR met in Moscow yesterday and the eyes of Kremlin-watchers all over the world were on the rubberstamp Russian parliament.

It was the first public meeting of a major Soviet organ of government since the ouster of Premier Nikita Khrushchev in mid-October.

There are some worrisome signs that Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin are drifting toward a harder policy line.

However, Western experts have detected even stronger evidence that the new leaders — like Khrushchev before them — are too preoccupied with economic problems to become too reckless abroad, or to turn the screws too tightly at home.

Almost every problem which faced Khrushchev, and now confronts his successors, is tinged heavily with economics. For example:

● How shall Russia's resources be allocated among the competing demands of a huge military establishment, an ambitious space program, foreign aid and last, but not least—

BACKGROUND

'B and K' Figureheads?

Joint Leadership Pleases Gromyko

Dateline: United Nations

Contacts over the last week with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko have produced two significant observations among diplomats:

● Gromyko appears to be more confident of his own authority than a year ago, when he was subject to the whims of former premier Khrushchev.

● Gromyko's conversations with other diplomats have left an impression that the Soviet Union is currently being run by a large committee, with Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin apparent figureheads.

ANDREI GROMYKO
... more confident

The foreign minister has left an impression that he is clearly in charge of the foreign ministry. Those talking with him have remarked on his self-assurance and confidence in contrast with his less certain reactions in talks here in September and October of 1963.

This has been interpreted as evidence of two things. First, it confirms the suspicion that Khrushchev played such a personal role in foreign policy that he sometimes took actions which could not be anticipated by his ministers, encouraging them to take cautious postures in negotiations.

Second, it suggests that Gromyko enjoys a new sense of security in relation to the new leadership.

Evidence of the collective leader in the Kremlin came as no surprise to most observers, although some see it as more broadly based than they had originally conjectured.

This committee phase, with no clear indication of who is now or will be in charge, has produced a certain amount of inertia.

For all of the angry histrionics emerging from Moscow, there has been an accentuation of the positive at the UN with every effort to suggest that the new bosses are doing business as usual in terms of co-existence.

On the East-West front, Gromyko has appeared eager to probe for new openings in easing cold-war tensions. But there has been no suggestion that this is the time for much movement.

Prince Sends Gift Back, With Thanks

VANCOUVER (UPI) — When Patty Surbey, 15, made a recording I Want a Beagle for Christmas, she sent copies to "two people I admire," Lynda Bird Johnson and Prince Charles.

Lynda Bird's reply read: "How thoughtful of you... Thank you so much. My family joins me in sending you best wishes."

From London, via Governor-General Vanier, came the reply: "I am commanded by the Queen to write and thank you for your kind thought... The Royal family do not accept gifts from people whom they do not already know. I regret to say, therefore, that his Royal Highness cannot accept your present and I am returning it with the prince's sincere thanks."

Patty asked: "Just how does one get to know a prince?"

Suits Sell Like Hot Cakes

Soviet Plant Justifies Capitalist Experiment

From the Associated Press in Moscow

The Russians have lifted the wraps from their first capitalist-style enterprise—the Bolshevikka textile plant. It seems to be doing all right.

In a radical experiment, the Soviet government turned over the operation last summer to general director Pyotr K. Noskov and directed him to make a profit.

Noskov told a group of foreign correspondents he guided through the men's suit plant that at first he made less than before, but has since improved.

That really wasn't the point. The Kremlin chiefs were mostly interested in seeing whether Noskov and his executives could run the plant without having every detail planned for them by higher authorities.

The director was permitted to make up his own production plans, based on orders received directly from big department stores.

This meant he produced only what the stores could sell—not what some supply bureaucrats guessed they might be able to sell.

Now, Noskov explained, the stores are ordering what the customers want and selling the suits like hot cakes.

One reason for the new system was that Russian shoppers were refusing to buy goods they didn't like. Millions of rubles worth of unsaleable items were piling up in stores and warehouses.

Noskov sets the wage scale, fixes prices and decides where to buy his textiles and what new investments and improvements are to be made. Average pay of the workers before the reform was about 86 rubles a month. Now it ranges between 93 and 96 rubles. The Russians consider the ruble worth $1.11.

The consumer is getting a better break too, according to the Bolshevikka management.

Before, the average price of suits was 86 rubles. Now it is 77 rubles. And the workmanship and styling are better.

Noskov said stores are ordering all he can produce.

With the pilot project well under way, the experiment was extended this fall to about one-third of the Soviet Union's consumer goods industries. The idea is based on proposals of Prof. Yevsey Liberman, leader of Russia's liberal economists.

Castro Expendable?

By HENRY GOETHALS
From Washington

Is a hard-pressed Fidel Castro heading for a showdown with his Russian masters?

The recent arrest of four old guard Communist leaders indicates that all is not well in Cuba.

Arrest of the four would appear to indicate that Castro's most pressing grievance is directed at the Soviet Union—and not the United States.

Seemingly, Castro has reason to believe that he may face a freeze-out by a new Kremlin hierarchy more intent on seeking closer ties with the United States than in sustaining his mismanaged economy which now costs more than $300,000,000 in Soviet aid a year.

He also may fear that the new Soviet leadership, fresh from throwing over Nikita Khrushchev, may adopt similar tactics in Cuba, thereby spelling the end of the Castro era and the start of a new era under tighter, more disciplined Cuban Communist leadership.

This theory is sustained by persistent rumors that Cuba has not arrested its downward economic spiral and that, in retaliation, Russia is slowly cutting back on its massive aid program, particularly in such vital areas as petroleum.

Forest Fire Fighter

Lightning Strikes Fixed By Radio 'Detective'

By IAN STREET

The B.C. Forest Service is pioneering the use of radio direction finders in tracking electrical storms.

The system known as "serics" is envisioned as a network covering the entire province within a few years.

200 Miles

An experimental unit located just outside Cranbrook was in operation last summer and proved it was possible to locate a lightning strike more than 200 miles away.

A more sophisticated prototype is being built by the forest service this winter and will be in use during the 1965 fire season.

Use of two sets will make it possible to pinpoint lightning strikes with greater accuracy at distances, it is expected, much greater than those already achieved.

Blanket B.C.

When development is complete the serics system will probably have a range of up to 500 miles for each unit so that six or seven installations will blanket the province.

Floyd Nelson, second man in the forest protection division, says the system will be used to trace the pattern of electrical storms over vast virgin forests.

This information will then be relayed to search aircraft who will concentrate their activities in the area where lightning strikes are likely to have caused fires.

'Problem Fires'

Last summer 24.7 per cent of all forest fires fell into this category, including most of the "problem fires."

Speed is essential in quelling outbreaks before they take hold in large tracts of timber. Introduction of the serics system will mean healthy savings in flying costs and elimination of many search delays.

But it will supplement rather than replace the present forest lookout system.

Up to Ranger

"Once we have located the fires from the air," says Mr. Nelson, "this information must still be sent back to the ranger. He must locate the fire on the ground. Then he must dispatch crews to suppress the outbreak."

Forest service officials are first to admit that their experimental unit is a Rube Goldberg affair.

Base Destroys U.S. Missile

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile malfunctioned shortly after launch early Wednesday at nearby Vandenberg air force base and had to be destroyed by the range safety officer, an air force spokesman reported. Destruction of the missile touched off scattered brush fires over an area of 100 acres.

It's about the size of a portable television set and uses two ring aerials, each three feet in diameter. Last summer's operations near Cranbrook, however, proved the circuitry.

Lower Cost

Development costs for the new prototype now under construction will probably amount to about $3,000. But it is hoped that later operational units will be approximately $1,000.

Long Service

Police Chief Of Saanich To Get Medal

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson and three other members of the force will receive long-service medals in a special ceremony Dec. 20.

Chief Pearson also will receive a bronze bar and maple leaf with the medal in recognition of "long, efficient and faithful" service.

Born in Taber, Alberta, the chief has lived on the Saanich Peninsula most of his life, joining the Saanich police force July 12, 1938.

FOUR MORE YEARS

In four more years Chief Pearson will receive a silver bar and maple leaf for the medal.

Const. Walter Mycock with 24 years service in January, Det. Edward Anderson with 21 years in March, and Deputy Chief Joseph Armstrong with 18 years service at Saanich after previously serving with the RCMP, also will receive the medals, instituted by the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Saanich police commissioners and councillors have been invited to the presentation ceremony which will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Saanich safety building.

Youth Facing Murder Charge

SALMON ARM (CP) — A 17-year-old youth was charged Wednesday with the non-capital murder of Peter Sylvester, 47, an Indian found dead behind his home Tuesday.

The body was discovered when a neighbor called to take Mr. Sylvester to work at a logging operation.

Nothing like it is operational at present elsewhere in North America, though the U.S. is reported to be developing a similar unit for use in Alaska.

Serics began in Britain where a network was established to chart weather systems. The experimental B.C. unit was tested in the Kootenays because electrical storms sweep into the province from the western Washington "breeding ground of lightning."

One bug that must still be eliminated: how to differentiate between almost simultaneous lightning strikes in different locations within the range of the machine?

Infra-Red

Another innovation on the horizon is use of infra-red sensory devices for airborne detection of small fires.

There's nothing new in the principle, but two Canadian firms are well advanced in development of units that will be of practical use in the field.

Road Death Inquiry Clears Driver

Result of an inquiry shows no blame can be attached to the driver of a car involved in a collision in which a motorcyclist was killed Dec. 2 in Esquimalt, Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said Wednesday.

"This is a clear-cut case," said Mr. St. Jorre. "Absolutely no blame can be attached to the driver of the car. He was sober, driving on the proper side of the road and under the speed limit."

KILLED INSTANTLY

The motorcyclist, Harry Allen Ashcroft, 41, of 2024 Belmont, was killed instantly in a head-on crash with a car driven by Robert Bruce Sutherland on Esquimalt Road near Dominion.

"I find Ashcroft was killed by operating his motorcycle on the wrong side of the road," said Mr. St. Jorre.

He said the dead man's blood showed an alcohol content of 14 per cent.

NO NEGLIGENCE

A coroner is allowed to hold an inquiry instead of an inquest when the circumstances of the death do not show a possibility of negligence.

The only time he is bound to hold an inquest is in case of murder, manslaughter or a death in prison.

Mr. Ashcroft's death brought the fatal accident total in Greater Victoria to 20—two less than at this time last year.

IN ARMY

Mr. Ashcroft was in the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers and was pensioned out in August, 1963.

Most of his military service was in eastern Canada.

He is survived by a sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Martin, 122 Maddock.

Attackers Sought In Saanich

Saanich police are still searching for two youths who punched and robbed another youth of $3 Sunday.

Brian Bromard, 16, of 4540 Blenkinsop, told police he was approached by the two youths as he walked home.

He said they punched him in the face, threw him into a ditch and demanded his wallet. When he gave it to them, they took out the $3 and threw the wallet back.

Training Facilities Urgently Needed

Hospital training provided by the B.C. government for practical nurses "falls down completely," Mrs. Lois Haggen said Wednesday.

The NDP member for Grand Forks-Greenwood called for full implementation of the Practical Nurses Act of 1951 without delay so that more adequate training facilities could be established.

Mrs. Haggen said she felt "deep satisfaction" at the announcement earlier this week that the government would set up a council to administer the act.

ONCE BEFORE

But she recalled that such a council was appointed once before.

The order-in-council, dated July 4, 1952, was passed by the Coalition government which brought in the act.

"Nothing further to carry out the provisions of the act was ever done," she said. "Now, nearly 13 years later, Social Credit acts."

INSTITUTIONS

Mrs. Haggen said the Hall royal commission report on health services recommends training of graduate nurses in teaching institutions rather than hospitals.

"This type of instruction should be provided for practical nurses also," she said.

B.C. has been attempting to provide practical training for these students through arrangements with hospitals located close to vocational schools which provide training in theory.

FALLS DOWN

In the hospitals the training of practical nurses "falls down completely," Mrs. Haggen said.

"What hospital has on its staff the personnel with the qualifications and time to give proper training to these students?"

Bedraggled Sophomore Claims Clean Record

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A bedraggled American International College sophomore stepped out of the shower Wednesday after 15 hours and 41 minutes and claimed he had taken the world's longest shower.

Stephen Sher of New York used an estimated 1,200 gallons of water.

At the Gallery

Synthetic Plastic Popular Medium

By INA D. D. LUTHOFF
Synthetic plastic medium has been popular with painters for some time and the current showing of paintings by Donald Harvey, the dynamic head of the art department at the University of Victoria, is an example of how effective the medium can be. It is fast-drying and will cover large areas rapidly, creating memorable paintings measuring a minimum eight feet by 12.

This is a pretty large painting as will be seen at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria just now, where about 20 of them fill the walls of the main gallery.

The most interesting is Interference, recently purchased for the permanent collection of the University.

It varies in the composition from the prevalent cruciform structure of so many of the other canvases in this show, which tend to be monotonous by so much repetition.

The small crayon, or oil pastel drawings, have so much compressed energy in them that they have the power to rivet one's attention. We do not see them for the first time. They were shown in the Provincial Library Gallery 'early' in the year and created some comment for their vitality.

My favorites in that group are Jearus, Labrys, Fallen Angel and Summer Form.

Mr. Harvey received his art training in England at the West Sussex and Brighton Colleges, coming to Canada in 1958 to be director of the Saskatchewan Art Board. He has recently had paintings purchased by the National Gallery of Canada and the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Oust Alberta?

B.C. Planning Bid For Gas Market

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia cabinet has ordered an appraisal of natural gas reserves in preparation for an attempt to take the big California market away from Alberta.

A directive to the B.C. Energy Board asks for a report by March 31, 1965.

This will be used as background for the province's appearance next spring at gas export hearings of the National Energy Board.

An Alberta application to the NEB will ask that the 1,400-mile pipeline now operated by Alberta and Southern Company Limited increase its annual flow to 6.4 trillion cubic feet from 4.3 trillion feet.

B.C.'s rival bid is expected to urge that more Alberta natural gas find its way to eastern Canadian and eastern U.S. markets, leaving U.S. west coast for B.C. as the province's only logical market.

CONSULTANTS

B.C. must first insure that it has sufficient reserves to supply California.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, who heads the B.C. board and also is chairman of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, said Tuesday that internationally-known consultants will help prepare the report on reserves.

Three Films Mark Human Rights Day

Victoria branch of the United Nations Association and the National Film Board of Canada will present three films in the music room of the Victoria Public Library at 8 p.m. today to mark Human Rights Day.

The Charter, a film review of the functioning of the World Peace Organization, will be introduced by Dr. Hartley Sargent, past president of the Victoria branch of the United Nations Association.

ANNIVERSARY

International Atom, the second film, will be introduced by Dr. W. M. Barsa of the University of Victoria physics department, formerly of Chalk River.

Dr. John A. Chapman, president of the Victoria branch of the United Nations Association, will introduce the third film, Overture, which commemorates the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Human Rights.

Universities Get Gift Of $25,000

Another $25,000 has been given to the Three Universities Capital Fund drive.

Contribution was made by E. C. Warner, president of Growers Wine, who gave $5,000 personally; $15,000 from the wine company, and $5,000 from an associated company, A-I Steel, of Vancouver.

Total collected on the island so far is $240,000.

University of Victoria, Simon Fraser and UBC are aiming for $28,000,000 in donations to match $10,000,000 from the government for development.

Hawks Finally Catch Fire; Rangers First to Get Burned

Chicago's slumbering Black Hawks awoke last night to let New York Rangers know that they'll get no Stanley Cup playoff chance by default.

Without their last five place New Yorkers in the National Hockey League race. Ken Wharram, last season's all-star rightwinger who had been in a season-long slump following a training-camp injury, led the Hawks with two goals. Rookie Fred Stanfield and defencemen Al MacNeil and Doug Mohns each got their first goals of the season, and John McKenzie got his fourth.

Rod Gilbert averted a shutout for the Rangers. Rangers paid particular attention to Bobby Hull, who was involved in minor scuffles with rookie defencemen Rod Seiling and Bob Plager, but it took some fine puck-stopping by Marcel Paille to keep Hull from scoring. Four of Paille's best stops were against Hull in the first period, but Hull managed to increase his lead in the individual point race to three by drawing assists on goals by MacNeil and McKenzie.

Juvenile Club Beats Juniors

Nixon's Juveniles defeated Esquimalt McLaren Juniors, 4-3, in a hockey game at Esquimalt Sports Centre last night.

Steve Marcus, Mike Derry, Rick Hamilton and Wayne Jolley scored for the winners while Don Robinson, Dennis Cubbitt and Ken Bate were the McLaren marksmen.

Roger Dejordy replaced Glenn Hall in the Chicago goal and had an easy night, facing only 17 shots.

In last night's other game, fine performances by goalkeeper Charlie Hodge and centre Henri Richard led Montreal Canadiens to a 3-2 win over the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Richard, whose return to action coincided with a rally which has brought his club five victories in six games, set up first-period goals by linemates Claude Provost and Dave Balon and Canadiens were usually in charge when Richard was on the ice. Hodge made 25 stops, including brilliant third-period blocks on Ron Ellis and Al Stanley which preserved Montreal's one-goal margin, and was outstanding in the second period.

Winning goal was provided by Gilles Tremblay, who stole the puck away from Kent

Douglas in centre ice as the Leafs tried to exploit a penalty to Balon, broke in and beat Terry Sawchuk with a hard shot from about 12 feet.

Leftwinger Frank Mahovlich returned to the Toronto lineup after an 11-game absence because of a mysterious illness and worked his regular position on alternate shifts. He made several good rushes but failed to get a point.

Chiefs Make Break Work

Victoria's Haida Chiefs made their fast break work last night at Central Junior High School, squaring their record for the season at 4-4 and gaining a share of second place in the Inter-City Men's Basketball League by outscoring Vancouver C.Y.O., 91-79.

The playmaking of Bill Wilson and, particularly, rookie Mike Call got the Chiefs away to a fast start and kept them in control of the game as the Victoria club opened up a commanding early lead, then came on strongly again after C.Y.O. had closed the gap to seven points midway through the second half.

Pete Simmonds, who has to be the league leading scorer, had another fine evening. He scored 13 points in the first half and 17 in the second to lead both clubs with 30.

Wilson found time from his playmaking activities to contribute eight field goals for 16 points. Gallo had 12 points and Darrell Lorimer, who was missing in the pointless Mainland invasion last weekend, got 19 of his 12 points in the second half to help keep C.Y.O. down.

C.Y.O. soon to be bolstered by defensive-end Mike Martin and reserve-quarterback Pete Olier of the B.C. Lions, had in George Carter, George Henley and rookie Brian Adams three parts of a team. The trio picked up 65 of the losers' 79 points but C.Y.O. didn't have the depth the Chiefs had last night.

Burnaby Anxious To Build Coliseum

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Vancouver ratepayers Wednesday turned down a proposal to donate two blocks of choice downtown property to Toronto Maple Leafs grounds (this is a facility that is largely related to the whole area," he added.

Smythe met with the Burnaby reeve during trips to Vancouver and toured the Burnaby site, but the Toronto sports promoter said he preferred a downtown location for any building he might erect.

Emmott said Burnaby would not "donate the land as Vancouver had proposed, but lease subject was first broached by it for a period of time agreed to by the promoter, to a maximum 99 years."

"And we will continue to do so, not on the grounds of capturing something for the municipality of Burnaby, but on the grounds of the whole area," he added.

Seals Leave Cellar

San Francisco Seals have finally escaped from the Western Hockey League's basement suite, lodgings they have had to themselves or shared with Victoria Maple Leafs since the first week of the season.

They made it last night with an uphill, 3-2 win over the Buckaroos in Portland, with two ex-Buckaroos setting the stage for Len Haley's winning goal less than three minutes from time.

Arnie Schmutz and Art Jones each gave Portland the lead but ex-Buckaroos Tom Thurlby and Ed Panagabko got tying goals. Haley then pounced on a rebound at 17:28 of the third period to move the Seals two points ahead of Victoria.

Villeumure made 43 stops to hold a 1-0 lead going into the third period, continued to shine after the Blades had tied it.

But Buzzie, You Traded Away Frankenstein!

By JIM MURRAY

"Operator? Get me Buzzie Bava, quick! It's urgent." "Hello, Buzzie? Murray here. I'm talking to you from a broken heart. What? How am I spelling it? 'Em-you-are-ay-why—Murray? What? Oh, I ha!! 'Haich-ee-ay-ay-ay—heart! What do you mean you didn't think I had any? Buzzie! At a time like this, you can kid!" "Buzzie, there's an ugly rumor going around that I want to nail before it gets any further. Buzzie, they're saying you traded Frank Howard for a couple of Washington Senators or congressmen or something. I don't know where they get ahold of these crazy stories. . . .

"What? You DID? Buzzie! Tell me I'm not hearing right. You're having your little joke, eh?" "Buzzie, how could you? I mean, like what am I going to do with all my old Frankenstein jokes? You know, Frankenstein Howard, The Boy Monster, The Thing, Frank Howard swung so hard, the bolts in his neck came loose. That kind of thing. They had to call time so they could change his oil. He cut himself and the blood came out 30-weight and detergent. In the off-season, Frank Howard gets a job poking his hand out of a washing machine with a box of soap suds. They paint him green and pose him for a can-of-beans ad. Frank Howard, the wind-up outfielder. You wind it up and it drops the ball. I won't say Frank Howard is made of iron but you check him after a rain and he's rusted.

"You see what you did, Buzz? You traded away two million adjectives. One thousand metaphors. I hope you at least got a two-headed pitcher for him. Or a three-armed outfielder. Or at least a guy with a beard. You got WHAT for him?" "Just a minute, Buzzie, I'll see if we can get a better connection. It sounds like you said you got a guy named 'Claude' for him. What? Buzzie, tell me you're kidding! There's no one named 'Claude' playing baseball. Claude Osteen? What, may I ask, is that? A toothpaste? The miracle ingredient in a headache powder? What? He won 15 games for the Senators? Buzzie, you know that funny little league they have over there. After the Yankees, everybody's the Mets. You know? So, never mind the 15 games. ANYBODY can win 15 games when it's the Kansas City and the Boston you're playing.

"So never mind the stats. Does this guy clank when he walks? Does he shake hands with everybody 10 times a day? Does he even have a TATTOO, for the love of heaven. Or does he just stand there and throw the ball?" "Who else did you get? Kennedy? Oh? Now you're talking. You mean the one who was made senator from some state he's never been to? Right? That makes sense. You could do yourself some good there. Buzz, I mean, this guy's got connections. Might do something about that tax bill, eh? Heh, heh. Oh, you're the shy one.

"What! NOT that Kennedy? This one's not even from Massachusetts! Oh, no! Don't tell me you got THAT Kennedy? The Washington third baseman? Buzzie, I swear I didn't think Washington could trade him. I thought he got elected to third base. This guy's such a bad batter, he couldn't chop a tree. And when I tell you he can't hit that pitching over THERE what do you think will happen when he sees a curve ball?" "You WHAT? You gave up Phil Ortega, Ken McMullen and Pete Richert, too? Buzzie, tell me something. Do you play poker? I'd like to get you in a nice friendly game. Say a thousand dollars a card. I mean, what are you trying to do? Take this off your income tax as a charity? Or did they pull a gun? I wouldn't trade Pete Richert eye-up for Osteen unless they were holding lighted matches to my feet.

"Buzzie, ask yourself this: supposing they outlaw the curve ball? I mean, don't laugh. You never know with the guys running baseball today. They're moving franchises down into the jockeywood country and they won't let catchers use mitts you can catch knuckle balls with which outlaws the knuckle ball, at least with men on base. You come right down to it, the curve ball is as unfair as the spitball. For Howard, maybe even more so.

"Throw out the curve ball some day, and Frank Howard will make Babe Ruth look like a hunter. He'll rub out every one of Ruth's records except scoreless innings pitched. O'Malley's right. You traded the biggest name in politics. You got yourself the wrong Kennedy and a pitcher named Claude.

"Also, did you ever stop to consider these guys might not be able to play before crowds? The Borrego Springs barber shop draws more people on Saturday night than the Washington baseball team. Haircuts are more exciting. When a guy in Washington says he's going to watch the Senators, he means the ones in string ties, not the ones in the home suits—the flannel mouths, not the flannel suits, so to speak.

"But now that Howard's gone, they may not have that problem. They may feel right at home in Dodger Stadium. Buzzie? Buzzie? Operator, I think we've been cut off. . . .

All's Serene At Piersall's Once Again

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Outfielder Jimmy Piersall of Los Angeles Angels and his wife apparently have ironed out their difficulties and expect a reconciliation, Mary Piersall said Wednesday.

Mrs. Piersall, 36, filed a suit in Superior Court here Tuesday, Oct. 22, 1964, and asking for separate maintenance and accused the 35-year-old outfielder of extreme cruelty.

Reached by telephone Wednesday, Mrs. Piersall said they were "more or less" reconciled and that she was "sure everything will work out."

The Piersalls have nine children. The couple married in Scranton, Pa., Oct. 22, 1949, and separated a week ago.

"We're tired of playing second fiddle to the Pacific Coast League," said Bill Coleman, MSL president. "We knock ourselves out in the prelude many rounds and are easy prey for the coast leaguers."

Mr. Coleman, representing five MSL divisions and 56 teams in Vancouver area and the Fraser Valley, has asked the cup executives to abolish the seeded draw.

Another Top Russian Missing from Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky joined his former boss, Nikita Khrushchev, in conspicuous absence from Wednesday's session of the Supreme Soviet.

The absence of the portly defence minister intensified rumors in Moscow that he is out of a job. Malinovsky has not been seen in public for almost three weeks.

Soviet military sources said Malinovsky was "on leave and resting."

Burnham Expecting To Assume Leadership

GEORGETOWN (Reuters) — Cheddi Jagan as premier of British Guiana. Burnham spoke to reporters as an uncompleted vote-counting in Monday's general election indicated Jagan's ruling People's Progressive Party does not have a clear-cut mandate to rule although it emerged as the biggest single party.

NOT OFFICIAL
Burnham said he plans to confer with Peter D'Aguilar, the leader of the opposition United Force.

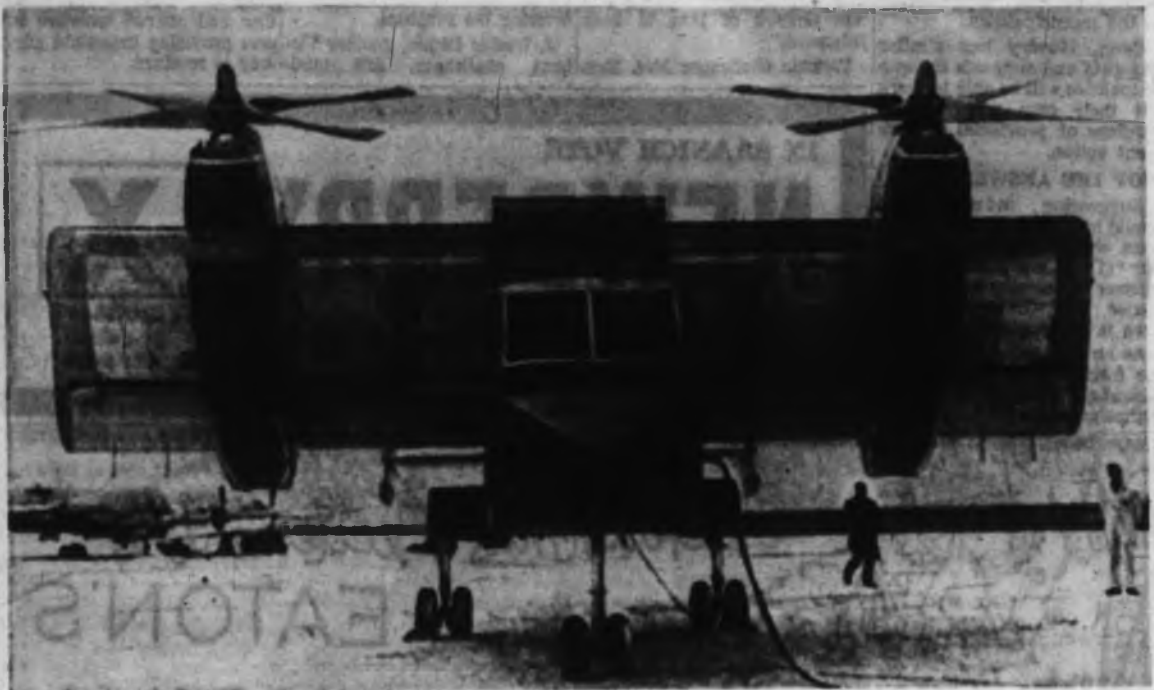

"Since the United Force will either form a coalition regime or give support to the congress in the colony's legislature, Burnham said, "and since they won't do either for the Progressives, it is safe to assume that eventually I am likely to head the government. But there is nothing officially announced yet."

Jagan's Chicago-born wife, Janet, conceded during the day that the Progressives did not gain an over-all majority over its two biggest rivals.

Jagan told reporters he intends to meet Burnham to discuss a possible PPP-PNC coalition, a deal Burnham has said flatly he won't make.

Jagan did not concede he had lost the premiership.

Dynavert tilts wings for helicopter-type flight

It's Half Plane, Half Helicopter

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadair's largest aircraft manufacturer unveiled a plane that can provide the answer to military problems of limited warfare and the civilian headache of long drives to and from the airport.

It hopes to do both by combining in one machine the prime features of both a standard aircraft and a helicopter.

Key to Canadair's CL-84 Dynavert, as it was christened before 400 guests at the company's suburban plant, is its tilt-wing design which permits the machine to operate one minute as a standard aircraft and the next as a helicopter.

Federal Industry Minister C. M. Drury called the occasion "an historic one for the whole of Canadian aviation."

Canadair president J. G. Notman said the company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Dynamics Corporation of the United States, was confident it had a project superior to anything in its field.

While the prototype will not fly before early spring, it showed Drury and Canadian, U.S. and other foreign defence experts its main feature during the brief ceremony.

Starting from a horizontal position, it tilted its wings and their giant prop-driven twin engines a full 90 degrees to the vertical position of a helicopter rotor.

BRUNNEN ROLLS
In military terms, this design seems promising for such brush-fire roles as troop transport, aerial command, helicopter escort, reconnaissance and liaison.

Its prime advantage over helicopters now being used for such jobs is that, if attacked, the CL-84 could tilt its wings back to conventional position in air and thus escape at roughly twice the speed of a helicopter.

Following Wednesday's ceremony, the prototype was to be handed back to project engineers for several months of testing, topped off by the first test flights by next June.

Shop Owners Fined For Label Removal

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Four gift shop owners were fined $100 each Wednesday when they pleaded guilty to removing made-in-Hong-Kong and made-in-Japan labels from items in their shops.

The shops were Harmony Art and Gift Shop Limited, Len's Souvenir Shop Limited, Ted's Novelty Store Limited and Dorothy Cranstone Limited.

All pleaded guilty to removing or obliterating markings or labels with intent to conceal information given on them, contrary to customs tariff regulations which required imported goods to show their country of origin.

Charges against eight other firms from Banff and Lake Louise will be heard in Banff next Tuesday.

Hearing of a charge against Banff Sulphur Mountain Gondola Lift Company was adjourned for a week after Claude Brewster pleaded not guilty.

TOURISTS BLAMED
Store owner Don Harmon told Magistrate J. W. Everett that the attitude of tourists in this famous Rocky Mountain resort centre forced the owners into the label-removing practice.

"They (the tourists) pick up an item, see it marked 'made in Japan' and throw it back at you. They want to buy articles at low cost but they don't want them marked as coming from Japan," he said.

Candidates Fear Bias in Mini-Metro

By GARY OAKES

At least four candidates in Saturday's Greater Victoria elections are definitely against the proposed joint services board.

Others generally favor mini-metro, but most of them have reservations.

Challengers and incumbents from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt expressed their views in answering a questionnaire from Greater Victoria's Association of Women Electors.

Esquimalt incumbent James Bryant, Oak Bay incumbents Peter Lovric and Alex Hendry and Oak Bay challenger F. A. Robinson, a former councillor, are against mini-metro.

Says Bryant, a 14-year council veteran: "The present inter-municipal committee and boards now established should be extended as the need demands instead of implementing a joint services board.

Oak Bay's Lovric is against mini-metro because it would be another level of government competing for the tax dollar.

He feels the proposed board could be a method of passing some provincial responsibility to the municipalities.

Coun. Hendry has similar thoughts and suggests the municipalities will be able to work out their own problems regardless of provincial government action.

develop the whole area as an integrated and well-functioning community."

Mr. Robinson perhaps summed up an expected underlying suspicion of everyone concerned with his closing line: "No matter how co-operative numerous municipal bodies may be, it is impossible to erase a certain amount of bias in their judgment."

J. Wesley Dickie, another Victoria challenger, felt mini-metro would be especially valuable in the area of recreation and parks.

Saanich challenger Erling Olson suggested the proposed board was necessary for area police and fire departments.

The other candidates wanted more information, agreed the proposal should be studied further and offered tentative support providing individual autonomy is retained.

Two-Headed Calves, Six-Legged Colt

Fallout Causing Freaks?

Mrs. Redfern and Crazy Legs

By AGNES FLETT

Has atomic fallout anything to do with three recent deformities found among Vancouver Island farm animals? Some farmers are asking this question and an expert on animal disease research says it hasn't been proved but it's possible.

***

The cases of deformities:

- Two two-headed calves were born within one recent week on two separate farms in the Cowichan district.
- A colt born last spring on Denman Island had six legs.

The calves were born dead. The colt's extra forelegs were amputated and the young purebred Welsh pony now is leading a normal life.

Dr. William Newton of Sidney, a retired expert on plant and animal disease research, says no one has ever attempted to prove atomic fallout has caused such deformities.

He said there might be proof if these cases are scientifically followed through for many years.

***

For example, a second or third birth of two-headed calves to a cow would "point to the fact" the deformities were caused by fallout.

The indication was no scientist would make such a study because of the lack of money for extensive — and expensive — research.

***

In addition, farmers usually kill the mothers when such births occur. This happened in the first Cowichan case but, in the second, the farmer and veterinarian Dr. David Reed saved the mother.

Nanaimo veterinarian Dr. J. E. Horsland said he has never seen a two-headed calf in his 15 years in the profession.

He and other veterinarians agreed cattle and other grazing animals would be the first to suffer from fallout effects as grass absorbs fallout rays quickly.

On Denman Island, an extra foreleg grew out above each fetlock of a colt born on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. R. Redfern.

The Redferns saw the extra forelegs were perfect in size and shape but decided not to sell the animal to a circus.

The forelegs were amputated and the colt is doing fine.

He was named, naturally, Crazy Legs.

NOT THE ANSWER

Suggesting mini-metro would only have limited usefulness, challenger Robinson added: "(I) do not think it is the answer to the numerous quandaries the Greater Victoria area is confronted with."

As an alternative he proposed the formation of "a strong independent planning body with sufficient authority to plan and

Wave, Strike, Merger

'64 Eventful Year But Who Cares?

ALBERNI—This year of tidal wave, strike and amalgamation vote has been the most eventful in Alberni's 51-year history, says Mayor Fred Bishop—but few people seem to care.

He made the statement Tuesday night to the annual stewardship meeting in city hall, called by city council to report to the taxpayers on the events of the eventful year.

The meeting was attended by city council, two outside candidates, four civic employees, three members of the press and an audience of exactly five.

There were no comments, no questions and no criticisms from the audience.

Service Station Opposed

Opposed to the establishment of a gasoline station on the northeast corner of Roberts Street and Esquimalt Road are the directors of West Bay Investments Ltd., a firm which expects to have an investment of $3,000,000 on seven nearby acres.

In a letter to city hall Victor W. Williams, managing director of the company, pointed out that a station would add to traffic problems on Roberts Street; that it was undesirable from an aesthetic standpoint; that it would not "add lustre" to a revitalized area and that there were enough service stations in the area.

A petition is being circulated and will be presented to city council.

ROME (UPI)—Italian journalists Wednesday were called out on a planned seven-day strike that will leave the nation without newspapers in the week preceding the presidential election in parliament Dec. 16.

The walkout involved all newspapers and Italian news agencies.

The national press federation called the strike after the failure of a last-minute mediation attempt.

Trade Union Charge:

Government Shuns Duty

WASHINGTON (CP)—Collective bargaining by labor in Canada and the United States has been "compelled by government default to cope with problems it was never designed for," a U.S. trade union official said Wednesday.

The U.S. government and apparently Canada's have made "only a formal commitment to full employment," said Nat Weinberg, of the United Auto Workers.

Labor would prefer governments to assume their full responsibilities and ease the load on unions at the bargaining table, Weinberg told a Canadian-U.S. conference on automation sponsored by the 21-country Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

The role of collective bargaining in an age of technological change, plus the pros and cons of more government planning leadership, highlighted the panel discussion.

A strong defence of Canadian government programs to encourage labor demand was made by Dr. W. R. Dymond, an assistant deputy minister.

JOB EDUCATION

Dymond aimed his remarks at Canadian trade union officials including Harry Waisglass, research director of the United Steelworkers and said it would be "quite unfair" to leave any impression that Canada is dragging its feet.

Waisglass had contended that "band aid" policies by the government provide retraining and job education for the unemployed but that efforts are lacking to increase the number of jobs available.

Blue Law Changes

Sassenachs Soon To Sing in Kilt?

LONDON (AP)—A government-appointed committee recommended Wednesday changes in Britain's archaic Sunday observance laws, such as the one that prevents anyone wearing the kilt from singing in a theatre on Sundays unless he is a Scotoman.

This was one of some 30 recommendations made to the government in an 81-page report by the Crawthorne committee, set up in 1961 to consider Britain's Sunday laws as they affect entertainment, sports and shopping.

Their recommendations, if accepted, will mean more live Sunday entertainment and an end to a tangle of Sunday trading laws. But the committee of seven men and one woman came out against professional sports, like soccer and horse-racing, on Sundays.

The committee came to the conclusion that the Sunday observance laws, based mainly on principles of the 17th and 18th centuries, no longer achieve their purpose of encouraging church attendance.

U.S. Citizen Ordered To Leave

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Harry Solomon Stonehill, 47-year-old American who had been ordered out of the Philippines after amassing a fortune there, has advised the immigration department that he will leave Canada by Jan. 9.

In a story from Ottawa, the newspaper says the department has also instituted an inquiry to decide whether an associate of Stonehill, Robert Philip Brooks, 46, should be deported. He is also a United States citizen.

Both men have been living in Vancouver.

"Stonehill, who was here as a visitor, had applied for permanent admission," the Globe and Mail says. "The department informed him it was not prepared to let him remain."

Brooks has the status of a landed immigrant. The inquiry to determine whether he should be deported was called on Monday in Vancouver and adjourned for a week.

Wachusett Won't Make It

Visit of U.S. Coast Guard cutter Wachusett, originally due at HMC Dockyard at 4 p.m. Tuesday from drills in Juan de Fuca Strait, has been postponed a second time because of generator trouble.

She was re-scheduled to arrive at 4 p.m. Wednesday, but in mid-afternoon word reached the dockyard that the generator trouble was continuing and the cutter would return to Seattle for repairs.

The visit is postponed indefinitely.

Except Oak Bay

Voters Stay At Home In Drove

Apathy filled two all-candidate meetings Wednesday night as apparently bored voters stayed home in droves.

But a controversy over high-rise apartments attracted an overflow crowd of more than 300 at Oak Bay.

The apathy squeezed into Victoria and Saanich meetings as a combined total of less than 70 people turned out.

NO MAJOR ISSUES

It was the old story about the have versus the have nots voters in Victoria and Saanich don't have a major issue to interest them.

And the overall situation will probably get worse before it improves as issueless Esquimalt and Sidney hold all-candidate meetings tonight.

LAST MEETINGS

Esquimalt candidates will appear to ratepayers at 8 o'clock in the Jubilee Hall on Fraser Street while Sidney hopefuls battle it out at the same time in the Sidney Hotel.

They are the last two meetings before election day Saturday.

CROWD OF 25

Victoria's Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored meeting drew 25 people and Jaycee officials expressed bitter disappointment.

"I guess people don't care who represents them in council," one said.

EXTRA CHAIRS

The Jaycees set up an extra 150 chairs in Sir James Douglas School, as a crowd of 300 was expected.

The meeting started with the audience singing O Canada.

SOMEONE LEFT

At one point the audience climbed to 26 but someone left moments later.

At Royal Oak High School, about 40 people trickled into the Saanich meeting, sitting through a dozen council candidates and two school board hopefuls in a little over an hour and a half.

Erling Olson was the only missing candidate.

The minor battle of the old guard versus new blood continued Wednesday at the Saanich meeting.

Ex-Alderman Hits Lack of Candidates

'A Pretty Poor Show'

By A. H. MURPHY

It's a pretty poor show when a city the size of Victoria can't find enough candidates to run for school board, says Frank G. Mulliner, ex-alderman and, for 11 years, a member of the school board.

At the close of nominations at city hall recently only one candidate had been nominated for two vacant seats on the board of School District 61. It was the first time in more than 50 years that there were fewer candidates than vacancies.

An enthusiastic booster of the city he served for a total of 21 years, Mr. Mulliner was disappointed.

Doesn't Like It

"I can't understand it and I don't like it," he said Wednesday.

"What people don't seem to realize is that membership on the school board is the gateway to public life.

"I ran for city council after membership on the school board and in my first try, I polled the second highest number of votes."

Vital Issues

Asked if he thought school board members should be paid, Mr. Mulliner said:

"It is such an important job—a job in which so much money is spent and so many vital issues considered—that we should have the best type of person in office. If it is necessary to pay them, then let's do so."

In other respects the city is booming ahead, said Mr. Mulliner. The financial situation was good and he did not think the tax rate was out of line.

"I think the public works department is doing a good job and I have nothing but good to say of the parks department."

Good for City

"Herb Warren did a good job as parks director when he didn't have any money to spend and he is still doing a good job."

Centennial Square and the plans for Bastion Square were good for the city which could do with beautification in spots, said Mr. Mulliner.

These plans were particularly valuable because they retrieved property values in areas where they were sinking.

The ex-alderman thought highly of the forward-looking attitude at city hall these days.

Money in Till

Of course it was easier to be "forward-looking" with a little money in the till.

Navy Stands By

Gasoline Leak Spreads Risk Of Harbor Fire

By DON GAIN

A navy fireboat is standing by in Victoria Harbor because a dangerous fire hazard has been created by gasoline which seeped into the harbor from a leak in an Imperial Oil storage tank.

Victoria Fire Chief John Abbott said last night the danger from hundreds of gallons of gasoline could last for another day and a fireboat would be on constant duty.

WARNING

Harbormaster Ronald Newell has issued a warning to people who use the harbor area on land or water to refrain from throwing burning materials in the harbor.

"You can't be too cautious," he said. "Even a cigarette butt or a match might touch off a fire and you wouldn't know where it was headed. Every precaution should be taken by all craft, entering or leaving the port of Victoria and even people on the land. Most harbor installations sit on creosoted pilings and are therefore inflammable."

FIRE TUG READY

Capt. John Osborn, supervising engineer of the navy's auxiliary vessels, said the navy's Fire Tug No. 2 is standing by at Victoria Machinery Depot across from the Industrial Reserve at the entrance to the harbor.

He said the 80-foot tug is equipped with two powerful motors and eight monitors capable of spraying foam at 150 pounds pressure to smother any gasoline fire.

A spokesman for Island Tug & Barge Ltd. said the tugs Island Trooper and Island Rocket, working in the area, will be ready to help.

An Imperial Oil spokesman said the 3,500-ton tanker Imperial Vancouver delivered an assortment of petroleum products, including 500,000 gallons of gasoline, to the company Wednesday afternoon.

A leak was noticed in another tank, he said, and it was decided to empty the tank into the Imperial Vancouver. The transfer of 100,000 gallons of gasoline from the leaking tank was completed about 9 p.m., he said, and "about 200 gallons leaked away."

It filtered down through the rock and some got into the harbor," he said.

WHY?

Capt. Newell said this was his first experience in 18 years of such a fuel leak being reported.

"We want to know why the retaining wall did not hold it," he said. "We don't want this to happen again. If there is a faulty barricade we want to know why. These barricades are put up to keep oil or gasoline back from entering the harbor."

The Island Tug spokesman said the danger was being eased by an ebbing tide.

INVESTIGATED

"The heavy runoff started at 7 p.m. and will last till 2 a.m. There is also a northeasterly wind which should push it out the harbor mouth."

The Imperial Oil spokesman said the cause of the leak is being investigated.

Playhouse Books Convention

Latest "attraction" to be booked into the McPherson Playhouse is one in which the audience will be the stars.

The event is the 1965 convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, Sept. 23, 24 and 25.

Playhouse manager Robert Ellison said the playhouse will seek convention business but the idea is not to make it cheaper to take business from other people, but to bring more conventions to the city.

Lumber Firm Sold

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

One of Victoria's oldest lumber firms, Shawnigan Lumber Co. Ltd., has been sold to a group of Winnipeg businessmen headed by K. E. Dickson.

The deal was completed Wednesday, and the new owners will take over the business as of Jan. 5.

Shawnigan Lumber was owned by J. W. Dalziel, president, Fred Hawes, managing director, George Thornberry, secretary, and Mrs. E. K. Dalziel, director. Purchase price was not divulged.

PRIOR EXPERIENCE

Mr. Dickson, who is shortly to take up residence in Victoria, has previous experience of the lumber business in Winnipeg. Mr. Hawes, in confirming the deal, said that Mr. Dickson did not anticipate making changes in personnel or policy of the firm, which employs 26 people on its Government Street property.

Previously known as Shawnigan Lake Lumber Company, it was established in the late 1890s by the Munroe family. In those days the firm also operated a sawmill at Shawnigan Lake. The retail store and yard has remained in its original site to this day.

CITY LEADER

Mr. Hawes for many years had been a leader in the commercial and business life of this city. He is a former president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and is at present a councillor for Oak Bay, and is standing for re-election this week.

The ownership last changed in 1935 when the present owners bought it from Bill Munroe, son of the founder of the company. The deal was negotiated by the Oak Bay realty firm of Meares and Whyte.

Save Greenbelt, Planners Urge

A resolution aimed at stopping the Saanich Peninsula's greenbelt from being gobbled up will be discussed by a panel of experts at a planning meeting Monday.

The resolution, urging provincial and municipal governments to "halt the conversion of farm, recreational and natural park lands to other purposes," has been approved by the executive of the Community Planning Association of Canada's capital region branch.

It will be presented to the general membership at Monday's meeting set for 8 p.m. in the Victoria Real Estate Board office, 1216 Broad Street.

TIMING IMPORTANT

Panelists offering professional views on the subject are: J. D. Baird, assistant deputy minister of municipal affairs; William Craven, Saanich assistant assessor; and district horticulturalist Alan Litterer.

Timing for the meeting is considered important as it falls after the B.C. Federation of Agriculture convention and before the public hearing planned for North Saanich by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell. The resolution calls for a body

Something Lacking In Christmas Load

A would-be Christmas tree merchant is cursing the fact he didn't check a load of trees he had delivered to his house for early Christmas sale.

In fact, about now he is probably trying to figure out some way to utilize Christmas tree branches, because apparently that is all the load consisted of—after he had issued a cheque for $225 for 300 trees.

But what really stung was the delivery man's greeting:

"Merry Christmas!"

A cartload of mischief! These delectable little men with their perky grins are made of spicy gingerbread.

Gingerbread Men Cookies Fun to Give and Receive

Gingerbread men are fun to give and receive at children's parties, fun to give as presents, and fun to receive. They are also an ideal way of keeping home-for-the-holidays children occupied. Just give them a freshly-baked batch of "men" and ask them to decorate them. There could even be a prize for the best dressed "man."

Raisins, chocolate chips, cinnamon candies, cherries, nuts and silver dragées can be used for eyes, nose, mouth and buttons. Secure them in position with half a cup of confectioners' sugar and one teaspoon of water. Use the rest of the glaze to give the gingerbread men hair, collars, gloves and shoes.

Crisp and chewy, these gingerbread men are spiced with ginger, cinnamon and molasses. Baked from the oven, they give off such an appetizing aroma that you will have to watch your young band of helpers with an eagle eye—they may eat all the "men" before the decorations are put into place.

Should you still have any over for Christmas, why not wrap them in cellophane and brightly colored ribbons and tie them to the Christmas tree, put them in gift pots by the door for visitors to take as they leave, or to use them for filling stockings. A batch of brightly decorated, smiling gingerbread men would make a lovely present for a child in hospital.

For parties, the "men" can be used as place cards for the tea table, with the child's name etched in icing sugar.

GINGERBREAD MEN
Yield—about 1½ dozen cookies.
Two cups once-sifted all-purpose flour or 2½ cups once-sifted pastry flour; 1 teaspoon baking powder; ½ teaspoon baking soda; ¼ teaspoon salt; 2½ teaspoons ground ginger; 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon; ½ cup shortening; ½ cup granulated sugar; ¼ cup lightly-packed brown sugar; 1 egg; ½ cup molasses; 1 teaspoon vanilla; currants or raisins; candied, or well-drained, maraschino cherries.

Sift together, three times, the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, ginger and cinnamon. Cream shortening; gradually blend in granulated and brown sugars. Mix in egg, molasses and vanilla; beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients, part at a time, mixing in well after each addition. Form dough into a ball and wrap in waxed paper or other kitchen wrap. Chill overnight.

Next day, grease cookie sheets. Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Roll out dough, part at a time, to a scant ¼-inch thickness, cut with floured gingerbread-man cutter. Arrange the cookies on prepared cookie sheets.

Make a face on each man, using currants or raisins for eyes and cut up cherries for nose and mouth. Bake the gingerbread men in preheated oven eight to 10 minutes. Cool on cake racks. Buttons, collars and cuffs of thick confectioners' icing may be piped on the men for a finishing touch.

Our Man In The Kitchen —HYMAN GOLDBERG—

Her friend was astounded at her appearance. "My goodness," said the friend, "what a change has come over you! You look marvelous! You must have lost 20 pounds since I last saw you! You have to tell me about your diet!"

Exotic Chicken Kiev

Treat your guests at this festive time with an easy-to-prepare, succulent supper dish, Chicken Kiev. It has an exotic name and an equally enticing flavor.

Creamy gobs of butter or margarine are snugly encased in tender chicken breasts and delicately seasoned. An egg and bread crumb coating ensures that when they leave the oven they will have a sizzling golden crust. They take almost an hour to cook.

This recipe makes four servings. Pre-heat to 350 degrees F. (moderate). You will require four large, single chicken breasts. Remove skin and bones from each breast of chicken, trying not to tear the chicken. Pound each chicken fillet as thin as possible with a rolling pin.

Shape two tablespoons of hard butter or margarine into four egg-shaped pieces and place one piece in centre of each chicken breast; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll up each fillet to encase butter or margarine completely. Beat one egg with one tablespoon of water. Dip rolls into egg and then coat with ¼ cup fine, dry bread crumbs; arrange on a rack in a shallow roasting pan.

Drizzle melted butter or margarine over the rolls. Bake them in pre-heated oven until chicken is tender—50 to 60 minutes—basting occasionally with melted margarine or butter. Each roll may be garnished with a paper-fried, wooden toothpick if desired.

The girl smiled wanly. "I'm not on any kind of a special diet," she replied. "Then how did you manage to lose so much weight?" the friend asked. "It's my boy friend," the girl said sadly, "he causes me so much trouble that I can't sleep, and I can't eat, or anything." The friend chuckled sympathetically. "That's terrible!" the friend exclaimed. "Why don't you give him up?"

The girl's face brightened up. "Oh," she said, "I'm going to, just as soon as I worry off another four pounds!" If you are one of those fortunate people who are not terrorized by calories, or if you want to serve a special treat, try:

CREME BRULEE

Two cups heavy cream; 4 tablespoons white sugar; 4 egg yolks, beaten; ¼ teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon vanilla; ½ cup brown sugar.

Pour the cream and white sugar into a double boiler, cook it, stirring until the sugar melts and bubbles begin to form.

Sift the brown sugar over the surface and put it in the broiler, 4 inches from the source of heat, until the brown sugar melts. Watch this carefully, because the sugar should not be burned. As soon as the brown sugar is melted, remove it from the broiler. Put it back into the refrigerator, and the delicious sugar crust will become hardened. This should serve four to six people.

An actor we know wears a monocle in his right eye, and people are all the time asking him why he wears a monocle in his right eye. "What else?" he and bubbles begin to form replies, "could I do with it?"

Tasty Fluffy Sauce For Festive Pudding

What is your favorite sauce for the steamed Christmas pudding? Hard sauce? Brown sugar sauce? They are all good but one of the easiest and quickest to whip up (literally) is Fluffy Sauce. It is made with eggs, sugar, rum, sherry, brandy or lemon juice. Try it soon and see if it doesn't rate a place in the dessert line-up for the festive dinner.

This recipe from the Poultry Products Institute is not only "husband-approved" but also "husband-tested" and frequently "husband-made," says PPI's home economist. However, any member of the family who can wield an egg-beater or run an electric beater can be engineer in charge of sauce-making on the big day.

FLUFFY SAUCE
Two egg yolks, 1 cup fine granulated or fruit sugar; 3 tablespoons rum, brandy or sherry, or ½ to 1 teaspoon lemon juice; 2 egg whites, pinch of salt.

Beat egg yolks until thick and creamy. Gradually beat in ½ cup of sugar. Continue beating until no grittiness remains. Beat in the rum or juice. Whip egg whites and salt until foamy. Gradually add remaining ½ cup sugar, beating well after each addition until mixture is stiff and glossy. Fold yolk mixture into whites until blended. Serve at once or chill and serve within two to three hours. Stir before serving as sauce may separate out a little on standing, or freeze and serve without thawing. Yields six to eight servings.

Patterson Children Delight Tea Guests

A lighted Christmas tree predominated the festive scene in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon.

The occasion was the annual Christmas Carol tea of the Victoria Women's Canadian Club.

A departure from the carol singing by the guests was the presentation of the Patterson family. It was a popular switch and the 400 guests applauded again and again for the youthful performers.

Pat, Ann, Bill and Suzie Patterson accompanied themselves as they sang, first, a group of folks songs, and then popular Christmas carols.

Everyone appeared to enjoy the program immensely.

Mrs. Pearkes, honorary president, with honorary vice-presidents Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. R. B. Wilson, was at the head table.

Miss Elizabeth Forbes, president, introduced head table guests, who also included Miss Kathleen Agnew, Mrs. F. M. Corbett, Mrs. H. H. Youson, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Patterson, parents of the young performers; Mrs. Pat Dufour and Mrs. Dorothy Wrotnowski.

Traditional Christmas colors were used to decorate. The head table held silver bowls filled with white chrysanthemums and red carnations, silver vases of holly and evergreen and red ribbon entwined with greenery and holly along the edge.

Other tables held large baskets of poinsettias and cedar and holly laid flat along the centre. Candlelight flickered from red glass lamps.

Mrs. Leslie Macdonnell, Mrs. Dai MacLeod, Mrs. T. C. Evans and Mrs. F. M. Corbett were in charge of the social and decorating committee and Mrs. Youson was responsible for the entertainment.

Pourers were: Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, Mrs. Kenneth Drury, Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, Mrs. W. G. Wilson, Mrs. R. G. McKee, Dr. Olga Jardine, Mrs. P. J. Sinnott, Mrs. A. T. N. Cowley, Mrs. R. T. ### Must Sell Sculpture

MONTREAL (CP) — For Sarah Jackson of Halifax, financial success means selling her sculpture for a big enough price to have something left after the foundry is paid. So far it hasn't happened.

The wife of a professor of architecture and mother of two children, Mrs. Jackson talked about the particular problems of her field of art while here to participate in the Hadsissah Art Exhibition and Auction.

She said she'd like to have lots of money so that she wouldn't have to get commissions and sell her sculpture to pay the foundry bills. In that case, she added, she would enjoy simply giving her work away.

"It's different for painters," said the American-born artist who also paints and writes poetry. "They always manage, somehow, to scrape enough together for their paint and canvases."

Pink and White Theme For St. John's Wedding

Bronze and champagne-toned chrysanthemums decorated St. John's Anglican Church for the marriage of Mary-Anne Fairbairn and Mr. William Andrew Mason.

Canon George Biddle officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fairbairn, 4231 Cam Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mason, 2100 Cadboro Bay Road.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a floor-length gown of white nylon chiffon.

The bodice of the gown featured a portrait neckline, highlighted with seed pearl embroidery, and lily point sleeves. French lace insets accented the full skirt. Her nylon chiffon veil misted to her fingertips from a coronet of seed pearls. Only jewelry was a crystal necklace and earrings, gifts of the groom. She carried a crescent bouquet of red roses.

to pews marked with pink and yellow roses and white satin ribbon.

A three-tier wedding cake, topped with bronze and gold chrysanthemums, centred the bride's table at a reception which followed in Holyrood House. Arrangements of toning chrysanthemums completed table decor.

Mr. Douglas Banks proposed the toast to the bride.

For a honeymoon trip touring Vancouver Island, the bride donned a teal blue, French boucle wool suit. A black velvet pill box hat, edged with a tiny veil, and black accessories completed her ensemble. The couple will make their home in Esquimalt.

The reunion was held at St. George's United Church, and during the celebrations some old pictures of the first days of the CGIT were shown and raised laughter and nostalgic memories. Before returning home, Mrs. House visited friends in Abbotsford.

COMING OF AGE

With Sally Hamilton

Have you ever noticed how, at Christmastime, it's easier to stir up even the worst old stick-in-the-mud? A married daughter tried times without number to get her widowed father, living alone, to come and see her—a matter of a 300-mile trip.

"It's too far," he would say. Or, "It costs too much. You come here." He wasn't really hard up at all but she let him say it and did make the trip as often as she could.

Then, last Christmas, she decided not to. She had a plane ticket delivered by special messenger to his front door, along with a Christmas card from her. "This is your present," it read. "Don't disappoint us."

That did it. Anyone so schooled in frugality couldn't waste that ticket. Father went for a visit; and had the time of his life. Played cribbage with one of his grandsons at all kinds of odd times; and he went along to a big community party. On Christmas day he attended church with the family.

"Best Christmas I ever had!" he boasted to his cronies at home later.

Then there was the case of Jim and Rena, a young couple managing to stay at school while living on a shoe string. Most of their friends were going home but Christmas, for them, promised to be anything but merry. They invited new acquaintances for dinner but everyone, it seemed, was due somewhere else.

They gave up any idea of fun and feasting. "Just one more sacrifice on the altar of education," they told themselves. Then Jim had a thought. "I'm going to invite the aunts!" he announced. (They weren't really aunts at all, but a pair of spinsters who ran the university book shop.)

Smart old gals they were, with quite a bit of savvy when it came to guiding students. They had helped Jim on more than one occasion.

How those two loved being asked out! They arrived for Christmas dinner loaded with presents, one a rare book Jim had looked at more than once with longing. They had even insisted on providing dessert—plum pudding from a fabulous old family recipe.

As it turned out, all of that oddly-assorted foursome were avid bridge players. They played late that night—and set up a return match for New Year's Eve.

Today distance separates many family groups that, in an earlier day, would have remained within easy reach for Christmas visiting. A phone call takes the place of the family bursting in the front door with exuberant greetings.

If you're long accustomed to the thrill of visitors arriving, you're apt to find a certain emptiness in sending or receiving gifts by parcel post. And then serving dinner to a two-some!

If you can't get what you want, want what you can get! Is there someone in your neighborhood you'd really like to share your Christmas with?

Organizations Lose Members

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Three of the four biggest women's church organizations in the country lost members during the last year on the basis of figures issued by the women's bureau of the federal labor department.

The United Church Women's organization reported its 1964 membership at about 250,000 women, a decrease of 50,000 from its estimate for the previous year.

The only large women's church group in the country to report an increase in members was the Catholic Women's League of Canada. It estimated membership increased by 3,000 members to 155,000.

The women's auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Canada reported its 1964 membership at 55,951, a decrease of 965.

The Women's Missionary Society of its Presbyterian Church listed its 1964 membership at 45,509, down 632.

APPROXIMATE FIGURE
Mrs. Celia Bookman of Ottawa, who compiles an annual listing of national women's organizations for the women's bureau, stressed Tuesday that in the case of the United Church Women, the figures are approximate.

In the Toronto headquarters of the United Church Women, executive secretary Anne Ward said the 1963 figure of 300,000 members given the women's bureau was "not correct."

"I don't know where the 300,000 figure came from—I don't think it was from here because we have never had a figure that high."

"It is very difficult to give an actual figure of active members, so we confine it to fee-paying members," she added. Mrs. Bookman started compiling the list of national women's organizations in 1961.

HAS 50 GROUPS

The latest list contains 50 national groups.

Besides the women's church groups, all the major women's charitable and educational organizations, political groups, professional societies and youth organizations for young women are included.

Of the women's political groups, the Women's Liberal Federation of Canada has the largest estimated membership—about 75,000 members. The Progressive Conservative Women's Association of Canada is second with about 71,000. The National Social Credit women's auxiliaries report 3,780 members. No figures are listed for the women's branch of the New Democratic Party.

Bride-Elect Honored At Parties

Miss Gail-Anne Randall, whose marriage takes place Saturday, Dec. 19, was honored recently at two shower-parties.

A gift of money was presented to the guest of honor when she was honored at a tea party given by Mrs. H. Daubeny and Mrs. T. Hallam. The affair was held in the Daubeny home on Glenora Place.

Red carnations en corsage were received by the bride-elect and white carnations by her mother, Mrs. G. Randall.

Invited guests included Mrs. A. Phillips, Mrs. E. Elwell, Mrs. F. Pitts, Mrs. G. McKenzie, Mrs. W. Rothery, Mrs. N. Patterson, Mrs. W. Christensen, Mrs. A. Bell, Mrs. R. E. Stearn and Miss Jane Edmison.

The Misses Jane and Nancy Edmison were co-hostesses at a dessert party held in the Mount Joy Avenue home of Mrs. H. M. Edmison. Mrs. A. W. Johns presided at the refreshment table that was centred with a small pink Christmas tree flanked by pink candles.

Gifts were contained in a pink and white decorated laundry basket.

Among those who attended were the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. R. E. Stearn, mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. A. W. Johns, Mrs. J. Collins, Mrs. I. Ritchie, Mrs. W. G. Cairns, Mrs. B. Green, Mrs. D. Roberts, Mrs. A. Vickers, Mrs. R. Coates, Mrs. A. Bell, Mrs. G. Davies, the Misses Marion Pelter, Andrea Selwood and Joyce Warford.

Chance Meeting

CALGARY (CP)—Two cousins met—19 years later and thousands of miles from their original homes—during an afternoon stroll here. Mrs. Fred Genest spoke to a little boy on the street and later discovered his mother was her cousin, believed to have died 19 years ago in an East German village. Mrs. Genest left East Germany after the war while her cousin, Mrs. Edward Ahner, came to Lethbridge in 1954 and Calgary in 1956.

Confidentially yours,

There are specially decorated Christmas gift cheques and Money Orders in holly-decked envelopes and folders. I ENJOY A GOOD CUP OF TEA as much as anyone I know... that's why I'm delighted with this world's first from Red Rose... the new 'Flavour-File' Gauze tea bag that lets you taste the full flavour of that favourite of teas—RED ROSE TEA. What is 'Flavour-File' Gauze? — It's a rayon fabric developed exclusively for Red Rose tea bags. Every type of tea bag material—until now—has dulled the taste of tea—just a little. But do taste Red Rose in this new 'Flavour-File' tea bag and I know you'll agree... it lets you taste the tea!

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are having a heated argument and neither of us will give an inch. Can you settle it?

I am becoming increasingly distressed about the indifference of our society to brutality and death. Fourteen and fifteen-year-olds bludgeoned innocent victims with pieces of pipe. When questioned they say they don't know why they did it. In some instances the murderer didn't even know his victim.

Heartbroken and bewildered parents report, "He was always a good child." Teachers add, "He was the sort of boy who never caused any trouble."

What is happening? I say the daily diet of killing on TV compounded by the use of guns as toys makes murder commonplace. Children are confused.

Values are blurred. They don't know when the game ends and real killing begins.

My husband wants to buy our five and seven-year-old sons toy guns, chaps, and cowboy hats for Christmas. I say "NO GUNS." He says guns are a part of a boy's growing up and I am some kind of a nut to deprive our sons of boyhood fun.

What do you say, Ann Landers?

BATTLING FOR SANITY
Dear Battling: I'm with you but I don't buy the theory that toy guns and TV will make killers out of healthy, normal children. The trouble goes back much further. I do agree that constructive TV shows and creative toys are infinitely better for children and I would not buy a toy gun for a child.

The American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) distributed an essay which echoes, faithfully, my sentiments:

Violence is abroad in our land. Dogs are turned on humans—Murder is with us in the headlines and TV. Homes are bombed in the North. Children in church are killed in the South.

We rely on weapons of annihilation to secure our "way of life."

Violence is so commonplace in our lives that we hardly notice it.

Until finally, our young and vital President is killed by an assassin's bullet.

Setting off a chain of even more violence.

And we are ashamed. Let us begin to question the violence of our lives.

Let us bring love and understanding to our families. Let us begin with our children.

Ought we supply them with the toys that make violence so commonplace—The gun, the tank, the rocket.

Rather than tools, paints, or books of other lands?

If we buy only creative toys this Christmas it can be a beginning—A symbol of our rejection of violence.

In memoriam to our late President.

In keeping with Christmas as a time of peace and love.

Let us begin by this small act.

If each of us does not do this—who will?

If not now—when?

***

Dear Ann: When a husband and wife are in a car together and the wife is driving what does it mean? I say it means the wife is in the driver's seat literally as well as figuratively.

Am I right or wrong about this? Ten bucks rides on your answer—D.R.T.

Dear D.R.T.: When the wife drives it could mean (1) she likes to drive and he doesn't. (2) Doctor's orders. (3) He's tired and she isn't. (4) He's stoned and she's sober. (Now what happened to your ten bucks)

Inspiration For Fashion

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian paintings are to be the inspiration for couturiers in a fashion design competition.

The Ontario department of economics and development has invited designers for established Ontario manufacturers to submit fashion designs based on Canadian paintings on exhibit at the Toronto Art Gallery.

The color, line or form of the paintings may all be incorporated in the design. A panel of fashion experts will judge the results.

The winning creations will be shown at a fashion show in Toronto May 20.

Million Miles Without Accident

OLD COUNTRY
SHOE STORE

635 JOHNSON STREET
(Just down from Douglas)

"Strangely enough it was mother, not my husband, who really objected to me driving a taxi. She said none of her daughters was going to be a hack."

But despite a rather blunt manner acquired along with driving skill, Mrs. Dicke has not forsaken womanly interests. Who would guess, for instance, that this heavy-set woman who runs her taxi stand with an iron hand has a passion for collecting delicate antique china?

"It's true. I've got a full house. I never go to the movies or spend money on clothes, but when I see an antique vase or dish I've just got to have it."

Like so many other Canadian women, Mrs. Dicke found herself in an unusual job due to the Second World War.

SHORTAGE OF MEN

"It was 1940. My husband, who had started a taxi stand just before the war, was finding it difficult to get good drivers because all the men were overseas."

Within a few months the brown-haired woman with the broad grin was a full-fledged cabbie.

"We had a cousin in the police force. My mother kept putting pressure on him to get my licence taken away. He never succeeded."

Mrs. Dicke's method of learning to drive was unconventional. She "stole" her husband's car early one morning to drive to the store for a loaf of bread.

"When I got there I had to ask the manager to turn the car around for me."

Arriving home, she found her husband in the middle of the road in his stocking feet. He had been awakened by the noise of grinding gears in the garage.

"Before that he just hadn't had the patience to teach me, but somehow he changed his mind."

Today she has a driving record that would be envied by many men. She holds a 24-year safe-driving award from the Transportation Safety Association of Ontario and is hoping for a 25-year award this month.

She says she was never involved in an accident of any magnitude until last August.

"It nearly broke my heart. A man plowed into the back of my new car and did $437 worth of damage. But it wasn't my fault, thank goodness."

HUSBAND ILL

Mrs. Dicke, who works every day of the year from early morning until midnight, has no firm opinions about whether men or women make the best drivers. Instead she said rather cryptically:

"I've been told by a lot of people, including men, that women drivers are very good drivers—when they ARE drivers. But they can be just as bad as men."

Although Mrs. Dicke started driving to help her husband, it wasn't long before she had to run the business all by herself.

In 1948, Robert Dicke became seriously ill. Although now well enough to answer the phone at the taxi stand, he has never fully recovered.

"I had to take over," Mrs. Dicke said. "I had to be a mother, a housekeeper, a nurse for my husband, and I had to look after the business too."

The Dickies have three children—now grown up. "Fortunately, I had a good housekeeper when the kids were young. She could handle them better than I could."

Now Mrs. Dicke is a grandmother of 10 but she has no plans for retiring from the taxi business yet.

"I'd be too lonesome at home."

The Dickies have had the taxi concession at the Ottawa bus terminal for a quarter century and many of their passengers are regulars. They started with one car and now own seven.

"We drive diplomats from all over, members of parliament and their wives—it's a really nice clientele."

Robbed

Victim Lured By Girl

An 18-year-old girl who lured a sailor into a dark alley where he was beaten and robbed early Tuesday, is to appear for sentence in Magistrate's court Dec. 15.

Hazel Rafter, of Nanoose Bay, pleaded guilty to robbery with violence before Magistrate William Ostler Wednesday morning.

A companion, Edward Reynolds, 20, of no fixed address, was remanded to today for sentence when he pleaded guilty to the same charge.

A third man charged, Roy Volden, no fixed address, pleaded not guilty and was remanded to today.

Court was told the sailor, Lorne Martin, of HMCS Mackenzie, was found lying unconscious in a lane between Johnson and Yates about 1 a.m. Tuesday. His wallet was lying open beside him.

Detective Lyle Somers told the court he went to a restaurant in Chinatown where he arrested Rafter and Reynolds.

They admitted stealing a bottle of rum from the sailor, he said.

Both have criminal records.

Willy Foreland, 1717 Howard, was sentenced to a 19-day jail term when he appeared in city Magistrate's court and pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and careless driving.

Court was told Foreland fled after crashing into the rear of a car stopped for a red light at Finlayson and Douglas about 9 p.m. Tuesday.

He drove his car to a parking lot and ran away on foot. He was arrested about 15 minutes later a short distance away.

A sailor was fined $20 in Oak Bay court Wednesday when he pleaded guilty of being a minor in possession of liquor.

Robert Hudson, HMCS Anilgnish, was found with two bottles of wine when his car was stopped by police.

James Elliot of Port Renfrew was fined $35 in Sooke court Tuesday for careless driving. He was charged following an accident on the Sooke River Bridge Dec. 5.

Two men were fined $25 each in Sooke court Tuesday for carrying loaded guns in a car.

Walter Leberge and Telford Kirkland, both of Sooke, pleaded guilty. Leberge was also fined $10 for improper tagging of game.

William McCall, no fixed address, was sentenced to four months in jail Wednesday when he was found guilty of theft under $50.

Court was told McCall had stolen some fountain pens from a room in a rooming house on Johnson Street Nov. 21.

Sinking Toll Now 28

RAUMA, Finland (UPI) — Police Wednesday said 28 persons were feared drowned, 25 of them teen-age girls on their way to an army dance, in the collision of a military launch and a tugboat outside Rauma harbor Tuesday night.

It was Finland's worst disaster since the Second World War. LAUNCH OVERTURNED

Police said 41 persons—three crew members and 38 girls—were aboard the launch which overturned and sank after the collision.

There were 13 known survivors. The military launch was carrying the girls to a nearby coast artillery station where recruits were holding a dance.

"We were singing happily on the boat when the crash came," said a survivor, 18-year-old Laila Matula, who managed to swim ashore through choppy seas.

"Everybody screamed in terror and tried to scramble out from under the covering over our heads."

'The Monster' To Strangle Tax Evasions

OTTAWA (CP)—The income tax evader who doctors the figures on his T4 slip is going to fall into the clutches of a computer.

The day will soon be over when a taxpayer can carefully erase the income figure from his T4 slip—issued to him by his employer—and just as carefully type in a lower figure before submitting it to the revenue department along with a claim for a tax rebate.

There always has been a reasonable chance that the evader could successfully pull it off. The department carries out spot checks, and has thereby nabbed some of the offenders, but it has been physically impossible to check them all.

COUGHED BACK

Now the computer is going to come into the act, and by 1965 every T4 slip submitted by a taxpayer will be checked against a copy of the slip submitted by his employer. The machine, known affectionately in the department as The Monster, will cough back any return that doesn't jibe with T4 slips issued in his name by any company.

The practice of doctoring T4 slips has been described by a department official as "fairly frequent among certain people." Just how much revenue is lost through the system won't be known until the computers wipe it out.

Magazine Features Christine

LONDON (UPI) — A new British magazine challenged the American monopoly of glorifying the undraped female Wednesday with the editorial declaration: "We like sex."

The new magazine, King, made clear what it meant by publishing the first nudes of Christine Keeler, the call girl of the Profumo-Ward scandal.

Publisher Paul Raymond, proudly surveying 105 glossy pages of pretty girls and articles by some of Britain's better writers, said the theme of the new magazine would be:

"There is nothing moral in hiding sex, or in pretending that the sight of a pretty girl undressed can corrupt any man, young or old."

operas, dramas and old movies. Where are they in the newspapers? In the comic strips? Comic strips are more a service to readers than ad-attractions. TV cartoons are ad-attractions first and foremost.

I can think of scores of other reasons. There's room for one: the Kennedy and Oswald killings. Oswald's death in the handling of fast-breaking news. Had he been exercised, Oswald might still be alive and we might know the answer to the question which will plague me forever—why?

Union Must Pay

QUEBEC (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America, an international union, was found responsible Wednesday for the actions of its local in a 1957 strike against Gaspé Copper Mines Limited and was ordered to pay an estimated total of $2,359,319 in damages and interest.

Mr. Justice Antoine Lacourcière found the strike, in which one man was killed, violated the Quebec labor relations law.

CLAIM REJECTED

He rejected a union contention that the labor group was not responsible for what happened in the violent seven-month strike at Murdochville, Que., and for the damages alleged by the company.

"The defendant contends that the union constitution calls for authorization of strikes by the international president and that the president never gave such authorization," Mr. Justice Lacourcière said in his 98-page judgment.

He went on: "He (the president) had only to say one word to stop or prevent the committing of the infraction and his omission to act constitutes an evident approval."

The judge added that even if the international president did not authorize in writing "the illegal strike, the defendant must account for its fault in having encouraged and supported it."

ORDERS PAYMENT

The judge ordered the United Steelworkers to pay the company damages of $1,747,645 plus five-per-cent simple interest on the total from Dec. 31, 1957. The strike ended in October of that year.

It was the biggest award for damages against a union in Canadian labor history. A court source said $2,359,319 would be the total amount the union must pay the company.

Gaspé Copper had sued the parent union of Local 4881 for $5,278,692 on grounds the United Steelworkers was a responsible for damages to property and loss of profits during the strike.

SUBJECT TO LAWS

Mr. Justice Lacourcière said that, although the Steelworkers Union maintains its "principal domicile" in the United States, "it is subject to the laws of Quebec for whatever is concerned with the activities it pursues here."

In Montreal, lawyers for the union said they have not decided whether to appeal the judgment.

COLONY MOTOR HOTEL

In place of a program of exclusively instrumental music, often including a classical symphony, it will present Johann Sebastian Bach's Christmas Oratorio along with the Choral Society, the Vera Barclay and Gayfer Singers, the Christ Church Cathedral Boys' Choir and five vocal soloists.

An oratorio was, originally, something first sung in an oratory. Incidentally, the Oratorio of St. Philip Neri in Rome. Now it has become a rather ill-defined form of musical composition, inspired, without doubt, by the works performed at the oratory but much changed and elaborated. All the experts do not agree that Bach's Christmas Oratorio is really an oratorio at all.

TO ATTRACT YOUTH
In 1556 the good priest Phillip Neri (1515-1595) inaugurated popular church services designed to attract and hold the attention of young people. A musical setting for popular devotional songs—called the Laude Spirituali—was provided by the Animuccia, and these were interspersed during the services. Another source of oratorio was the use of incidental music in mediaeval miracle plays and religious processions.

A third was the Holy Week recital of the Gospel story with the Evangelist sung by a tenor in Gregorian tones, other direct quotations by other suitable voices or crowds by a chorus.

The similarities between this form and that encountered in the Bach "Passions" is striking enough to suggest that the Holy Week recitals were the source of his inspiration. Phillip Neri was, of course, not the only one who strove to make religion and the gospels interesting and attractive. Every art was at one time harnessed to this endeavor; music, painting, sculpture, drama and so on. This was the only way of propagating the gospel message in an age of illiteracy. This is no longer necessary, so oratorio survives as a museum piece in musical composition. Like mediaeval castles or church wall paintings they remain interesting as examples of art form, but with that art in no way diminished. This is worthy of serious consideration in connexion with the Christmas Oratorio on Sunday and Monday or Messiah on December 21 and 22.

Colony Rolls Back Years

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Twenty-year-old Muriel Bertrand is an entertainer who puts all she has into her act, and when she leads the community sing-along at the new Colony Flora Dora theatre restaurant Friday and Saturday nights she puts plenty into it.

The Colony has brought to life some of San Francisco's old Barbary Coast days in its new venture and the restaurant patrons love it as a honky tonk piano played by Jack Lanaghan and banjo strummed by Orville Speed beat out music for the sing-along.

Patrons find a Flora Dora song sheet on their tables and it includes all the old favorites... 29 of them. By request just about any other oldtime song will be sung.

Dinah, Rosie O'Grady, Little Brown Jug, Alexander's Ragtime Band and California Here I Come are only some of the numbers which rock the walls of the Colony.

Because it is a theatre restaurant there is no age limit on patrons. A menu which is a reproduction of a Colonist of 1899 features $2 meals... fried chicken and beef and kidney.

GAY NINETIES
Gay-nineties clad Flora Dora bar room girls serve the drinks from an old-fashioned bar attended by a gay nineties-costumed bartender, complete with straw hat. Flora Dora girls originally came from London, England, and brought the first musical extravaganza to New York before the turn of the century.

Milton Tisdale, who designed the Flora Dora Room, has tried to faithfully reproduce the gay ninety days of San Francisco.

HONKY TONK
Chandeliers, old authentic paintings, balustrades from old Victoria homes, an old cash register and even a honky tonk player piano, plus the gay costumes and gay spirit create the affect.

The room is divided into sections... a Colony Room featuring Se Colony, an old paddle wheeler, a vintage car room, Diamond Jim Brady room and the Holiday room.

If the spirit moves you it is permissible to dance in the centre of the room. Reproductions of 1895 Victoria newspapers make up the table covers.

Miss Bertrand started entertaining when she was six years

Understudy Got Chance Became Ice Show Star

The old show biz chestnut about the understudy who went on and became a success when the star fell ill is a true and up-to-date story for Ice Capades principal Richard Garrett.

The Sault Ste. Marie skater joined Ice Capades a few years ago and became an understudy.

STAR BROKE LEG
When the star broke his leg, the Canadian took over and became a principal. This is his third season as a star in the show.

Ice Capades doesn't separate him from his family. His wife skates in the show and six months ago their daughter Leslie was born.

Heart Attack

Dame Edith Dead

LONDON (Reuters)—Dame Edith Sitwell, 77-year-old English poetess, died Wednesday night in hospital here after a heart attack earlier in the day.

A tall, striking figure, Dame Edith was eminent among poets and was one of the most colorful personalities of her time.

In appearance, she was a majestic throwback to the middle ages, managing to combine in her long life the roles of "grande dame" and the "enfant terrible."

BARONET'S DAUGHTER

The only daughter of an affluent and scholarly baronet and the sister of two brilliant literary brothers, Osbert and Sacheverell, she claimed to have a strong resemblance to King Henry VII of England, and dressed accordingly.

To suit her tall figure and long Plantagenet face, with its aquiline nose and heavy-lidded eyes, she wore elaborate hats or turbans and long flowing gowns recalling medieval fashions.

Some of her clothes were made of sumptuous materials, such as heavy brocades.

SOCIAL LEADER

Yet she was once a leader among young socialites of the 1920s. These "bright young things," as they were known, snubbed their rebel spirit in pranks and eccentricities aimed at startling London's conventional society.

They sent a stuffed owl to Parliament, addressed to a member they considered pompous. After refusing invitations to a socialite's party they would shout comments at arriving guests through megaphones from the top of a nearby house.

Edith Sitwell once had herself photographed by court photographer Cecil Beaton lying on a bier, surrounded by candles and flowers, as though dead.

Tourists Lured By Santa

It looks as if Santa Claus will be good to the tourist business. A number of inquiries have been received by the Victoria Visitors Bureau, many as a result of the current $1,500 advertising campaign on the Prairies. One inquiry came within 24 hours of the publication of the first advertisement.

EVENTS LISTED

All replies being sent out by the bureau between now and a few days before Christmas will contain the Christmas calendar of events.

The Empress Hotel reports many reservations for accommodation for the Christmas festivities there. Business is a little better than normal, a hotel spokesman said.

100 RESERVATIONS

The Olde England Inn which features the Boar's Head ceremony, expects to be filled for Christmas.

Capacity is 150 guests and so far there are 100 reservations, many from Victoria.

When You're Past 100 Don't Blow at Candles!

When you pass the 100-year-mark, you don't try to blow out the candles anymore.

Edgar Crossley, who was 101 years old yesterday, will have a piece of birthday cake after dinner.

He and his 85-year-old wife, Mary, live at Matson Lodge, Victoria.

TWO CAKES

The Crossleys received two birthday cakes in honor of the event this year.

Relatives gathered at the home of a daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Victor (Jean) Turner, 3312 Aldridge Street, last Sunday, where the first cake was served up, beautifully decorated and with the words "Happy Birthday Dad," but minus candles.

Train in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass reported Tuesday that several hundred Zambians have left their island home for training in Russia and other Communist countries as "specialists."

The second cake, from a daughter in Saskatchewan, was served to them at Matson Lodge yesterday.

Mr. Crossley attributes his old age to a Biblical quotation: "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

BORN IN ONTARIO

He was born in Centerville, Ont., moved to Brandon in 1882 where he was in the hardware business, and moved to Oxbow, Sask., in 1882.

He gave up the hardware business in 1916 and sold insurance until he left Oxbow and retired in Victoria in 1947. He was then 83.

Mr. and Mrs. Crossley have six children, 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Three of the children live in the Victoria area, two are in Saskatchewan and one in Toronto.

Now It's Two Walls!

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany, which condemned the Communist Berlin wall, now has built one of its own.

The new wall allows East German workers into West Germany but at the same time keeps them from escaping East Germany.

eight feet high and 800 yards long. It seals off 7,200 square yards of Bavarian territory and is designed to prevent East German workers rebuilding the Saale Bridge on the Berlin-Nuremberg autobahn, near Hof, from escaping to the West.

Budapest Gay, Beautiful

BUDAPEST (AP) — Moscow and Budapest are both seats of Communist power. But the Hungarian capital is scarcely like Moscow. It is gay, brighter, and it is beautiful.

Outwardly it is as different from the Soviet capital as London or Copenhagen.

Why the contrast in two capitals ruled by the same political ideology.

To Hungarians, the answer is simple: They are Hungarians. The Russians are Russians.

Where young Muscovites are told Western music is decadent, country — in the geographical sense of the word.

"We have a Western culture, a long tradition of Western standards of style, fashion and food. Hungarian women have flair, they're naturally good dressers. They couldn't be dowdy."

When you are in Moscow you can never forget that you are living in an intensely politically-minded state. Slogans, stretched across a road or illuminated on a tall building, are as much a part of Moscow as street signs and traffic lights.

"You forget," said one Hungarian, "that we are a Western None is seen in Budapest.

Budapest even has some privately-owned stores. There's a restriction on the number of people an owner can employ — three or four is tops — so he can't build up a capitalistic empire. But the stores do a thriving trade and pay taxes like businesses in any capitalist capital.

None of this means that Hungary is going capitalist, though some people here say the country is beginning to take a more liberal line in its domestic politics.

Dismal Quebec Day Turns Light, Sunny

By JOHN YORSTON

QUEBEC (CP)—April 2, 1964, seemed a dismal day for Quebec and Canada.

A federal-provincial fiscal conference had just ended in the Quebec legislature building and Premier Jean Lesage, disappointed, lined his face, read a prepared statement on the talks.

"Le gouvernement du Québec n'est pas satisfait," he said, his voice raspy with weariness. "The government of Quebec is not satisfied."

LITTLE DONE: The reason was that little had been done during the three-day conference to meet Quebec's requirements for an immediate increase in its share of personal income taxes.

The provincial budget speech was two weeks away and Mr. Lesage made it clear double taxation would be imposed on Quebecers and Ottawa blamed. PACKAGE DEAL:

But within 12 days, as the result of secret negotiations, a package deal with broad implications for Canada was negotiated between Quebec and Ottawa.

The federal government agreed to make more tax resources available to the province and adopted many of the features of the widely-praised Quebec portable pensions plan. In return, Quebec agreed to modify some aspects of its plan, making the two almost identical.

SHARE INCREASED: The way was opened for Quebec to get more money to finance education, roads and social welfare measures and at the same time for workers to carry their pensions in and out of Quebec more easily.

When the fiscal conference ended, only weeks remained to the deadline for Ottawa to meet Mr. Lesage's demand for 25 per cent of corporation and personal income taxes and all succession duties, the so-called 25-25-100 formula.

As a result of the agreement, Quebec will obtain by 1966 24

Way Opens To Provide More Funds

per cent of personal income taxes, in addition to the 21 per cent corporation taxes and 75 per cent of succession duties it already receives.

With federal-provincial relations going more smoothly, the Quebec government appeared as 1964 waned, to be preparing for a showdown with separatism.

A hint of this came when Mr. Lesage was in Paris where he told a reporter that separatists "don't even dare to present candidates in an election."

The province got a new attorney-general in October and he made it clear, within hours of his appointment, that the separatists will have to obey the law meticulously as they campaign for Quebec's secession.

Claude Wagner, 39, a tough former judge, was yanked off the bench and into the cabinet by Mr. Lesage. He challenged "sincere and serious" separatists to prepare for elections "and go to the people democratically to see what they think of them and their separatist ideas."

Shortly after this Pierre Bourgault, 43, leader of the main separatist body in the province, started a Quebec-wide speaking tour preaching non-violent secession from Canada.

Mr. Bourgault, head of Le Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale, which claims 7,000 members, was the main speaker at a demonstration against the October Royal Visit to Quebec on the eve of Queen Elizabeth's arrival. The demonstration attracted about 700 to a public hall in Lower Town Quebec City.

Next day in the Quebec legislature the Queen made a major statement on Confederation which was generally well received in Quebec.

DYNAMIC STATE: While knots of separatists shouted slogans outside, the Queen said a dynamic state "should not fear to reassess its political philosophy."

"That an agreement worked out 100 years ago does not necessarily meet all the needs of the present should not be surprising."

As an offshoot of federal-provincial frictions, the Quebec Liberal party broke away from the federal party because, Mr. Lesage said, the two groups are often on different sides of the fence on specific issues. Not being allied meant they would discuss these differences more easily.

The provincial Liberals consolidated their hold on the province in four byelections, holding three seats and grabbing one that had been held by the Union Nationale for 29 years.

DISCONTENT SHAKEN UP: The Union Nationale, the official opposition, seemed to be in trouble. Not only did it lose a traditional stronghold but one member, Yves Gabias of Trois-Rivières, said he is disaffected with the leadership of Daniel Johnson, 49, party chief since 1961.

A party meeting, scheduled for this fall, was postponed until the spring. Mr. Gabias, a lawyer who succeeded to the seat once held by Maurice Duplessis, was suspended from the legislature for three years after he accused former attorney-general René Hamel of influence peddling. A legislative committee ruled the charge had not been proved and the assembly, in an unprecedented step, voted Mr. Gabias' suspension.

PARTY STANDINGS: Standing in the 75-seat legislative assembly now is: Liberals 62, Union Nationale 30, independent one, vacant two.

Three important sections of the population flexed their muscles during 1964.

Students, many of them voters since the voting age was dropped to 18, paraded 7,000 strong in support of the Quebec position at the April federal-provincial fiscal conference.

Labor made clear its opposition to a piece of labor legislation when the 25,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor (CLC) threatened a general strike if the bill was not changed. Most of the alterations demanded were made.

Now, he says, he's busy learning the details.

When he became president of Neon Products here, Mr. Smith first ordered construction of a scale model of the entire plant operation so he could "tell at a glance where every job is."

Now, he says, he's busy learning the details.

Business Variety Spice of Life

VANCOUVER (CP)—Harvey R. Smith is a businessman who believes in knowing every detail about his production line.

He says he is not a professional manager, the name given to a growing number of businessmen who can run any company with or without an intimate knowledge of the industry. "I don't really understand this professional manager thing," he says. "How can you make decisions if you don't understand in principle what you're doing?"

NEW PRESIDENT:

Mr. Smith is the new president of Neon Products of Canada Ltd., a Vancouver-based firm which runs Canada's largest sign manufacturing business. The plant here employs 630 men and, aided by sales from subsidiary plants in Victoria, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg and Toronto, rings up sales of almost $7,000,000.

Neon's new president has built dams and ships, aircraft and automobiles, railway cars and air bases. Now he's busy learning the sign-manufacturing business.

Born an orphan in Calgary, he rose to managerial positions with Kaiser Industries in the United States. In 1952, he returned to Canada and ran A. V. Roe's aircraft plants as vice-president of manufacturing.

Moving back to the U.S., he became manager of Puget Sound Bridge and Drydock Company's hydrofoil project for the U.S. Navy in Seattle.

When he became president of Neon Products here, Mr. Smith first ordered construction of a scale model of the entire plant operation so he could "tell at a glance where every job is."

Now, he says, he's busy learning the details.

The things they know about making Scotch couldn't be written down, they're bred in. And added to during a lifetime of experience. Roland's great-grandfather was a maltman,

Garden Notes

Dainty Jawbreakers

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRAS
It has often occurred to me that the Campanulas, those delightful bellflowers, would be much more widely grown if only they didn't have such awful, jawbreaking names. The plants are almost indestructible, and they keep on blooming longer than any other perennial flower in our garden, but how can any plant achieve popularity under such unpronounceable names as Poscharkyana, Phytocodex and Portenschlagiana?

The first-named, Campanula poscharkyana, produced the first of its dainty pale blue spikes in June and was still going strong toward the end of last month. In sun or in shade, in dry summers or in wet ones, this little fellow keeps blooming its head off. We have several pockets of it in the rock garden and four or five clumps naturalized in a loose stone wall. I find it an easy matter to take up a couple of the topmost stems whenever I want to remove a bit of plant for a friend or neighbor.

C. Poscharkyana has the reputation of being something of a gatecrasher, invading parts of the garden in which it is not wanted. I haven't found it unpleasantly invasive, although self-sown seedlings turn up occasionally in the gravel path, and I found one husky plantlet growing happily in a dimple in the top of a big rock, the depression containing less than half a cupful of soil.

Campanula portenschlagiana — let's call him Porty for short — is a tiny bellflower only six inches tall, half the height of his cousin Posky, and is a grand trouble-free plant for edging a path or a perennial bed, for the rock garden, and for a loose stone wall. I know of one ardent gardener, long since past the age of active outdoor work, who has a pot of Porty growing happily in her sunny bedroom window.

Porty doesn't put up quite the non-stop blooming performance of Posky, but the plant is more compact and neater, and if the faded sprays of erect purple-blue flowers are cut away after the first flush of bloom is finished, he will oblige with a second and sometimes a third period of bloom. His tongue-twisting name, incidentally, honors Father Elder von Portenschlag-Leidermeyer, an 18th century Austrian botanist.

Two decorative and trouble-free border bellflowers are Campanula persicifolia and C. glomerata. The first, known as the Peach-leaf bellflower, stands about two feet tall, with the flower spike clad all the way up with white or mauve bells in varying shades, in some plants very close to a genuine blue. There are both single and double varieties, and the plants will remain in flower for two months at least, especially if the faded florets are nipped off with scissors, the way you do with Canterbury Bells.

Porty isn't quite so self-supporting as Porty and Posky, for her slender spikes become a bit top-heavy when laden with blooms and some light staking is required. Except for this, she needs almost no attention, thriving in either full sun or partial shade.

I don't have to seek a nickname for C. glomerata, for it is known to English country folk as the Twelve Apostles plant because it carries approximately a dozen deep mauve bells upright near the top of its 15-inch stems. While inclined to spread into neighboring territory, it is an especially valuable plant for the shadier sections of the garden, and its delicate mauve shade looks particularly lovely near pale pink roses.

ART BUCHWALD Tears Veil from FBI

J. Edgar Hoover Mythical!

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of discussion as to whether J. Edgar Hoover should be asked to resign from the FBI after his recent remarks about Martin Luther King and the Warren Report.

I can now reveal for the first time why President Johnson can't ask J. Edgar Hoover to resign. The reason is J. Edgar Hoover doesn't exist.

He is a mythical person first thought up by Reader's Digest, and over the years he has become such a legend that no president has dared reveal the truth.

What happened was that in 1953 the Reader's Digest was printing an article on the newly formed Federal Bureau of Investigation, and as they do with many pieces they signed it with a nom de plume.

gar was the name of one of the publisher's nephews, and the J. stood for jail.

What they hadn't counted on was how successful the article would be. J. Edgar Hoover caught the imagination of the American public and became a household word. The FBI had no choice but to keep the legend going. Besides, a person who doesn't exist can't make mistakes.

As part of the conspiracy they made a composite picture of several FBI agents and published it as the picture of the number one G-man.

Then they hired people who looked like the composite photo to travel around the country to inspect homes and businesses and testify in front of Congress.

There have been, in fact, 26 J. Edgar Hoovers since 1953, and until the recent unpleasantness the FBI intended to have many more.

Naturally, when you're keeping a conspiracy like this going for so many years there are bound to be slip-ups. For example, once when J. Edgar Hoover was photographed in front of a Chicago movie theatre arresting John Dillinger, while another one was accepting an award in a hotel in Philadelphia.

All hell broke loose at the department and the agent in charge of keeping the different J. Edgar Hoovers on schedule was asked to resign.

It's interesting to note that some J. Edgar Hoovers have specialized in Communist-hunting, while other J. Edgar Hoovers have gone after Nazis. Still others prefer to go track down the reds and the blacks.

Up until a few weeks ago the conspiracy was so well handled that no one had the slightest clue, except for the president, that there was no real J. Edgar Hoover.

But then without clearing it, one of the less discreet J. Edgar Hoovers decided to call a press conference, where he violated the FBI rules about getting into politics. He blasted Martin Luther King, the Warren Report and the Supreme Court and everyone started to call for Hoover's resignation.

President Johnson is now in a terrible quandary. Does he get off the hook by admitting there is no J. Edgar Hoover, or should he go ahead and have a retirement dinner for him and see the legend through to the bitter end?

If he does hold a retirement dinner does he ask the 26 J. Edgar Hoovers who have played the role to come to the dinner and give them each a watch, or does he just ask the last guy, who was the one who really loused the legend up?

I'd hate to be the one who had to make the decision.

Parents Protected from Costly Commercials

Violence Saves Money

By ART SEIDENBAUM

The Christmas season is a time when at our house we encourage our children to watch a certain amount of violence on television.

During most of the year we protect them and their sweet sensibilities from private eyes and adult westerns, preferring to channel their attentions toward those nice programs on which all those nice marching children celebrate their birthdays.

But not now.

All those nice programs are showing those dear commercials for robots that cost $20 and anthropomorphic dolls at $15 and one-man war bits that can devastate entire family economies.

Toys today are all priced for grandparents, not ordinary people.

And so, opposed though we may be to censorship, we do ask the children not to watch the suggestive kiddie shows this month.

Instead, we recommend something old-fashioned, like a seventh rerun of 77 Sunset Strip. And then we hope for cigar sponsorship or even a sticky roll-on.

Christmas is a time of losing friends, literally.

You go through great lists, used only at card-sending time. The entries have unmuddled, moved, even remarried over the years; the one constant is that the lists, like the season, grow ever longer. The incomplete sections mark the mystery families, crushingly close friends who have disappeared off the face of your address book.

Do you send a card to their last known address, confident that it will be returned with an impersonal admission of defeat by the postal system? Do you well, hoping that these loyal, true friends will send you a card first with their new name marked upon it?

One becomes obsessed by the problem. Suddenly, seasonally, these few pieces of correspondence become pivotal in a man's life. It hardly matters that little or no information is exchanged inside, other than the printed greeting.

Meanwhile, hundreds of cards come in. Some from absolute strangers. You adjust the lists, expanding them ever more to accommodate the people you didn't know liked you so well.

Then, having waited, having worried, the loyal and true friends' greetings arrive—bearing no return address. Suddenly, a sense of madness, it will weigh heavy as a fruit cake, for the remainder of the season and can be expected next season.

This is the month for getting fat and home late and no exercise.

This is the week for buying a nifty kid's automobile that comes unassembled in a neat package for easy shipment and carrying.

Reckoning will not come until Christmas Eve, when after five hours of monstrous manual labor, none of the parts fit, none of the directions make sense and 14 thumb-screws seem to be missing, while there is an oversupply of bolts—it is only then that the season seems desperate.

These are the nights when the neighbors and the neighbors' neighbors use up your parking space with their party.

Wives become profligate. Children become greedy. Associates become unavailable.

Yet it all becomes quite sentimental. It is permissible, for a change, to admit that you care. And so greetings of the great season to you.

DR. STUART ROSENBERG Advises—

Stop Your World and Get Off

Man, it has been said, is a social animal: more than people need him, he needs people.

Yet man is also a human animal, and in order to become fully human, he must not become overly social. There are times when he must close out the world of noise about him.

When the conflicts of over-competitive battlers must be run, when the heater-shaker race through the maze of life must be obliterated from view.

Occasional withdrawal from the world, in order to return to it invigorated by fresh insights and new understanding, is a healthy and human thing to do.

The prophets of old went off into deserts, scaled mountains, walked away from crowds—and in quiet and peaceful moments of withdrawal saw life from a sharper and more perceptive angle of vision.

In our extroverted civilization, where everyone talks at once, we imagine that we need to be speaking all the time. In order to be heard. But there are some silences more eloquent than speech: the silence of quiet conscience grappling with life can sometimes utter the telling, compelling word.

It does take courage to withdraw, to step back, to move out of circulation, to shun the noisy, yet glittering crowd. It takes grit and self-discipline to close one's eyes to the all-too-alluring material delights, to concentrate energy and attention upon the inner man.

Too many of us are pre-occupied busybodies walking around with inert, flaccid, untended souls. We are ever-ready and ever eager to make a grab for the world's affairs, to make the great decisions for others, to take a stand on matters in which we have little stake and over which we have no control.

But we need to concentrate on the human as well as the social side of our nature. Unless we learn how to cultivate our own deepest and noblest capacities for good, we shall become good for nothing.

To do that, we must, occasionally, withdraw from society, even from one another, and concentrate on developing the powers which are dormant waiting for the application of solid and sustained energy.

Parents must learn to see their own children from a distance, and be ready to be viewed objectively from afar.

Even husbands and wives occasionally need to stand away from one another, to learn to cultivate their own spiritual worlds, and thus bring to their beloved, not less, but more of themselves.

Our glaring need to pay more attention to our inner life is tragically highlighted in the sense of inadequacy. When some men and women reach the mark of three-score-ten, they feel rejected by the younger world around them.

All their lives, they claim, they have been busy helping other people; in their later years, when they seem to need people most, no one seems interested in them.

When this does happen, it is often too late in life to alter the unhappy condition. The horse has been stolen; locking the stable will no longer avail.

Before we are old and grey we must learn how to cultivate our own inner lives, so that we avoid dying from boredom when we can no longer keep up with the crowd. Before we become bored to death, we should learn how to live with ourselves. For a man is of no use to anyone if he is of no use to himself.

The time to start making deposits in our personal spiritual account is now—if someday we want to draw the dividends accumulated over years of self-cultivation based upon self-discipline!

Calendar Flips, Back 50 Years

The calendar was flipped back 50 years this week when some 30 men in Victoria recalled their experiences in France during the First World War.

Members of the Victoria branch of the Old Contemptibles' Association — a select group which was serving in France early as November, 1914 — had a dual reason for putting so much gusto into their singing.

GOLDEN JUBILEE

They were holding their Golden Jubilee dinner at the Dominion Hotel, and for the first time since the Victoria branch was formed on Dec. 7, 1963, they had their own flag.

The branch flag, designed here and made in Vancouver, was presented to the unit by Mrs. Harry C. L. Lindsay.

TOOK INITIATIVE

Mrs. Lindsay, who in past years has seen the various Old Contemptibles' flags at memorial services in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, Eng., thought it would be nice if Victoria had its own flag and saw to it that one was obtained.

The new flag was brought in by R. L. Hamilton, vice-president and standard bearer. Escorts to the colors were William Jones and James Hayhoe, BUCK PRIVATE

It was dedicated by Canon George Biddle, chaplain to the Old Contemptibles here, who told the "Chums" that he served in France as a "buck private" in 1915 and went on to become a staff sergeant.

Harold Russell, president of the branch, started a roll call in which each man stood up and told his name and the regiment he served in.

PATRON ATTENDS

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, a patron, was in Vancouver and unable to attend, but Maj. W. Romeril, another patron, was present.

After dinner, the chums joined in the singing of such old songs as Tipperary, Symphany and Alice Blue Gown, and the room echoed with happiness.

New flag held by R. L. Hamilton and Mrs. Harry C. L. Lindsay

Christmas, Fire Spell Tragedy At Happy Season

Christmas, the happiest time of the year, could easily turn into a tragedy if your Christmas tree caught on fire.

A cut tree inside a home is a potential fire hazard and the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C. tells how to reduce this danger.

WATER NEEDED

A tree starts to lose moisture as soon as it is cut and when it is brought into a home the butt end should be cut off at least one inch above the original cut and the tree placed in a cool, shady place with the butt end in a container of water.

The water container should be kept full daily in order to keep the tree fresh and green, said the association's safety hints.

CHOOSE WITH CARE

Meanwhile, the All Canada Insurance Federation states that trees, decorations and special Christmas costumes should all be chosen with special care and protected from fire.

Both the forestry association and the insurance federation advised the following safety precautions:

- Be sure the tree is well supported and is away from fireplaces, radiators, television sets or other sources of heat.
- The tree should be placed where it will not block an exit in case of fire.
- Use good quality electric lights on the tree, not candles.
- Avoid the use of extension cords whenever possible.
- Be sure that Christmas lights do not overload the electrical circuits in your home.
- Keep papers, gifts and other inflammable articles away from the base of the tree until Christmas eve.
- Do not use paper, gauze-like materials or other highly inflammable cloths for children's costumes.
- Check carefully for burning cigarette butts after every party or gathering in your home.
- Always turn out electric tree lights when room is unoccupied.

Closure Request

Tories' Flag Split Widens

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative split on the flag issue widened Wednesday as Quebec leader Leon Balcer called on Prime Minister Pearson to invoke the often-damned closure rule to shut off the 30-day flag debate.

Mr. Balcer, who has disagreed publicly with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on federal-provincial relations as well as the flag question, electrified the Commons at the opening of the sitting by reading a blunt, 200-word statement in French.

He said the flag debate, dominated by English-speaking Conservatives who back the red ensign, has paralyzed Parliament and harmed national interests. If free speech was to be respected, the proposal for a maple leaf flag should come to a vote without further delay.

PARTY DISAGREES
Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill immediately said Mr. Balcer was not speaking for the party.

The Conservatives bitterly fought closure in the 1956 pipeline debate and made it a major issue in their successful election campaign a year later. Creditable Leader Real Casotte said he strongly supports Mr. Balcer's call for closure. "INTERESTING"

The government did not comment in the Commons, but Mr. Pearson told reporters in his office later that it was "an interesting proposal, coming from the deputy leader of the opposition."

A government informant said closure has been considered and rejected. It was felt that it would be inappropriate. A majority of the special flag committee recommended Oct. 29 that a single red maple leaf design be adopted as the Canadian flag. Debate on the committee report has taken precedence over all other Commons business for the last eight days. Earlier stages of the flag battle took up to 22 days last summer.

Stanley Knowles, NDP whip, moved Wednesday that the House set aside the flag question and switch to government bills, such as the labor code, but his motion was defeated 123 to 99.

Astronaut Young's wife, mother at launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A last-second engine misfire on a Titan II rocket dealt a severe setback to the U.S. man-in-space program Wednesday, postponing the final unmanned launching of the two-man spacecraft until January.

The National Aeronautics

and Space Administration also said the delay will shove the first manned Gemini flight into the second quarter of 1965. The three-orbit trip by astronauts Virgil Grissom and John Young had been scheduled for the first quarter, in February or March.

The trouble occurred Wednesday 1.7 seconds after the Titan II booster engines ignited. Loss of hydraulic pressure caused one of the two engine nozzles to swivel out of place and the engines automatically shut down.

A space agency spokesman said one of the nozzle tubes received a slight crack as a result of the malfunction. He said the entire first stage may be replaced to assure proper performance in an effort to qualify the rocket for manned flight. He said extensive checking of all systems must be completed before a decision is made and a new launching date scheduled.

Talks with Pearson

Wilson Plans NATO Meeting On Nuclear Arrangements

OTTAWA (CP) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson plans to call for a special NATO meeting, possibly at ministerial level, to discuss new nuclear arrangements for the alliance, informed sources said Wednesday.

Plans for such a meeting have not yet jelled, they said. Timing of a conference has not been decided.

Mr. Wilson and Prime Minister Pearson discussed for an hour Wednesday NATO nuclear matters and Wednesday night turned to bilateral and Commonwealth affairs.

Mr. Pearson indicated to reporters that Mr. Wilson would like to see Canada in any new NATO nuclear command which might be established.

'One White Not Worth Two Black'

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The foreign minister of the former French Congo accused Belgium, the United States and Britain of causing the massacre of "scores of thousands of blacks" to save

"an insignificant number of whites" in the Congo. Charles-David Ganao delivered a bitter attack against the U.S.-Belgian rescue operation launched from British-ruled Ascension Island. He said blacks had been murdered only for committing the "crime of being born in a country whose natural resources have become notorious."

Ganao said that, as a child taking music lessons, he had learned that one white note was worth two black notes. Now, he said, "It seems that one white man, especially when he is called Ganao, is worth two black men."

Ganao's reference was to Dr. Paul Cartoux, an American medical missionary who was among the white hostages killed in Stanleyville Nov. 24 on the day of the U.S.-Belgian operation.

Liberation vs. Rescue Mission

Reds Demonstrate

ROME (UPI) — Italian Communists staged a noisy demonstration Wednesday against Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe even before his scheduled arrival today in Rome.

They threatened more and violent demonstrations today when he calls for an audience with Pope Paul VI and talks with Premier Aldo Moro.

Leftists paraded in downtown Rome, chanting anti-Tshombe slogans. Police broke up the march in the Piazza Argentina and held several dozen persons for questioning.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council rejected Wednesday a Soviet demand that it ignore charges by Congo Premier Moise Tshombe that some African countries, with Russian encouragement, are shipping military supplies to Congo rebels.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson countered immediately that the Russians were trying to erect a smokescreen against charges that Moscow was aiding the rebels.

Soviet chief delegate Nikolai Fedorenko did not deny the charges, but declared that the Soviet Union believed that the Congolese people were engaged in a "liberation conflict, a holy struggle."

FIGHTING IMPERIALISM
He said the Congolese rebels were fighting colonialist imperialism, in keeping with the basic principles of the UN charter.

After a long procedural wrangle the council decided by a vote of 7 to 4 to consider both sides of a dispute resulting from the recent mission undertaken by Belgian paratroopers in U.S. transport planes to rescue white prisoners held by rebels in the Stanleyville area.

VETO NOT USED

The four negative votes were cast by the Soviet Union, Morocco, Czechoslovakia and the Ivory Coast. The big power veto did not apply, since the vote was on a procedural matter.

In a move to head off any demonstrations, security guards barred the public from the galleries of the council chamber. There were reports that African nationalist groups in New

Vancouver

Voters Defeat Coliseum Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — William George Rathie was elected mayor for a second term in Wednesday's civic election, but his plans for the city were chilled by the electorate.

The mayor's pet project, a bylaw which would have allowed council to give Toronto Maple Leafs two blocks of downtown land for an $8,000,000 coliseum, fell far short of the necessary 66 per cent majority required to pass. (See story Page 18.)

ALSBURY SECOND

Former mayor Tom Alsbury ran second in the four-field mayoralty race. Alderman Marianne Linnell—the only woman in the race—ran third and William Shenton, ran last.

A Rathie-supported "five-year plan" for the city, which would have given council power to spend more than $40,000,000 in city re-development in that period, was defeated.

FOUR ELECTED

Also defeated was a plank to use millions received from Ottawa when the federal government took over the Vancouver International Airport, for centennial projects.

Apparently elected to two-year aldermanic terms out of a field of 14 were Ald. Hugh Bird, Ald. Earle Adams, Ald. Ernie Broome and former alderman Orson Bantfield.

Two Found Dead, Man Shot

TERRACE (CP) — The bodies of a woman and a man with a string tied from his toe to a rifle trigger have been discovered in a motel cabin here.

The woman was identified as Rose Gertrude Johnson, 27, of the Hazelton area. The man was identified as George Franklin Kennedy, 50, a truck driver.

The woman's body bore no visible marks of violence. Police said the man died from a 22-calibre bullet in the head.

Secretary's Secretary

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Vaikan title extraordinary: Monsignor Giovanni Moretti is the secretary to the secretary of the secretary of ordinary affairs.

Sky Cop Thwarts Bank Bandit

ATLANTA (UPI) — A sky cop in a helicopter helped capture a bandit who bungled his second holdup of a bank that he had successfully robbed of $27,000 last June.

The trench-coat-clad gunman, identified as Keith Donald Moore, 24, of Atlanta, Wednesday took five hostages and tried to bluff police by threatening to blow up a school by remote control if anyone interfered with yesterday's attempt.

After his capture, Moore pleaded guilty at his arraignment in recorder's court to two counts of armed robbery. Wednesday's attempt and the $23,000 holdup last June 26.

During the bizarre attempt the trench-coat-clad gunman grabbed the hostages—two of them children—and led police on a wild 100 m.p.h. car chase through suburban streets.

All five of the hostages were released unharmed.

The end came for the daring bandit when air traffic Patrolman Joe Collins used his helicopter as a dive bomber to help box in the getaway car.

"We dived at the car, trying to harass the driver," Collins explained. "A detective in an unmarked car managed to partly block the car. We landed behind the car, boxing it in, and the four of us captured him," Collins said.

Mrs. Suzanne Ingle, one of those taken hostage, identified Moore as the same man who robbed the bank of $23,000 last June.

Colonist 500 Fund

Veterans' Gift Replaces Usual Children's Party

The executive of the Victoria Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada has given a donation to The Daily Colonist 500 Fund instead of a Christmas party for members' children this year.

Secretary-manager John E. Radley said that in lieu of the party a donation to the needy would be made through the Colonist Fund and hampers would be sent as well to needy veteran members.

"May we wish you success with your venture once again, and for a bigger and better fund, herewith our cheque for $100."

Many clubs, from Brownies to bridge groups to employee organizations, have joined with the veterans in donations to the 500 Fund—as to date:

Donations
$3,785.47

today's list of contributors further testifies. Hundreds and hundreds of individuals made a contribution Tuesday night when they brought a toy with them to the giant Kinmen Bingo in the Memorial Arena. The result — 2,500 toys for the 500 Fund Toy Auction, Dec. 18 at Maynard's auction rooms.

The toys were brought to Maynard's Wednesday morning by Art Wool of Reliable Transfer and are now stored on the second floor of the auction rooms at 733 Johnson.

Brooks Tomlin, manager, said Wednesday that he and his staff will take further donations at any time. "The more toys, the bigger the success."

All money raised by the auction will go directly into the fund—no service charges, no carrying charges, no auctioneer's charges.

The only "charge" associated with the fund is the good feeling received in helping those 500 families in the community who most need a boost at Christmas.

And the most direct avenue of help is a letter with a contribution to The Colonist 500 Fund, The Daily Colonist.

Many Voters Can't Vote On Fluoride

NORTH COWICHAN—Not all residents in North Cowichan are eligible to vote on the fluoridation plebiscite Saturday, officials said Wednesday.

Balks may be cast on the plebiscite by North Cowichan residents who are served by the Duncan city, Crofton, Chemainus and Maple Bay water systems. Residents who are not served by any of these systems are not eligible to vote.

Duncan city will hold a similar plebiscite.

Most medical men in the area have urged a yes vote on fluoridation.

No Parking Allowed Near Polls

NANAIMO—No parking will be allowed on either side of Church Street to keep traffic clear to a minimum during the civic election Saturday, police said Wednesday.

Balloting will be in the Shoreline Hotel ballroom from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and police added, cars will not be allowed to stop to let passengers out in front of the hotel.

A record turnout is expected because of the fluoridation plebiscite. Returning officer Miss Cathy Waugh, assistant city clerk, says 6,365 are eligible to vote, one fewer than last year's record.

Two-Headed Calves, Six-Legged Colt

Fallout Causing Freaks?

By AGNES FLETT

Has atomic fallout anything to do with three recent deformities found among Vancouver Island farm animals? Some farmers are asking this question and an expert on animal disease research says it hasn't been proved but it's possible.

The cases of deformities: ● Two two-headed calves were born within one recent week on two separate farms in the Cowichan district.

● A colt born last spring on Denman Island had six legs.

The calves were born dead. The colt's extra forelegs were amputated and the young purebred Welsh pony now is leading a normal life.

Dr. William Newton of Sidney, a retired expert on plant and animal disease research, says no one has ever attempted to prove atomic fallout has caused such deformities. He said there might be proof if these cases are scientifically followed through for many years.

For example, a second or third birth of two-headed calves to a cow would "point to the fact" the deformities were caused by fallout.

The indication was no scientist would make such a study because of the lack of money for extensive — and expensive — research.

In addition, farmers usually kill the mothers when such births occur. This happened in the first Cowichan case but, in the second, the farmer and veterinarian Dr. David Reed saved the mother.

Nanaimo veterinarian Dr. J. E. Horsland said he has never seen a two-headed calf in his 15 years in the profession. He and other veterinarians agreed cattle and other grass-eating animals would be the first to suffer from fallout effects as grass absorbs fallout rays quickly. On Denman Island, an extra foreleg grew out above each fetlock of a colt born on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. R. Redfern.

The Redferns saw the extra forelegs were perfect in size and shape but decided not to sell the animal to a circus. The forelegs were amputated and the colt is doing fine. He was named, naturally, Crazy Legs.

Shelter Inlet

Two Men Escape Sinking Troller

TOFINO—A Tofino fisherman and a Sidney Inlet logging operator returned here Wednesday after escaping death the night before at the mouth of Shelter Inlet, 20 miles northwest of Tofino.

Robert Duncan and Sammy Craig managed to make their way to shore at Riley's Cove when Mr. Duncan's 36-foot troller Exuberant struck a rock and sank quickly.

HEAVY SWELL. Mr. Duncan was taking Sammy Craig to the latter's logging operation on Sidney Inlet, another five miles to the northwest, when a heavy swell caught the troller and the mast and one fishpole snapped. The Exuberant was swept toward the shore. The rock near the shore punched a hole in her side.

REACHED SHORE. The two men managed to launch the troller's small lifeboat before the Exuberant went down. They reached the shore, where they were later picked up by district fisherman Pat Charleean in his vessel Ilean Sean.

He took them to the C and B logging camp on Sidney Inlet. They dried out there, stayed overnight and returned to Tofino in the Ilean Sean Wednesday.

Mr. Duncan is undecided whether to retain Tofino Marine Works to raise the Exuberant.

Complete Overhaul Slated For Trades Licence Laws

LAKE COWICHAN — A provincial government request for an amendment to municipal trades licence bylaws has prompted Lake Cowichan council to consider an overhaul of its entire bylaw.

The amendment changing due dates for trades licences to April 30 and Oct. 30 has been required of all municipalities by the government. Present dates are Jan. 15 and July 15.

Municipal clerk W. A. Chappell said Wednesday the dates are being changed to coincide with the business dates of most owners. They operate only about six months each year and therefore require only one trades licence a year instead of two.

Mr. Chappell said the village council decided Tuesday night not to give the first three readings to the amendment until its next, and last, meeting of the year Dec. 29.

WRITE ELSEWHERE. Councilors felt the Lake Cowichan bylaw needs "a complete overhaul" and decided to write to various other municipalities requesting information on their trades licence fees, before adopting a new bylaw in January.

The council also supported a proposal by the Lake Cowichan PTA for a third police officer in the district. The PTA is writing to the provincial government to ask for the third man.

KINSMEN OFFER. The Lake Cowichan Kinsmen Club notified council its members are willing to contribute $1,000 and volunteer labor toward the construction of an addition to the firehall.

The addition will house the club's two ambulances. Local volunteer firemen disclosed they will again put up

Wave, Strike, Merger

'64 Eventful Year But Who Cares?

ALBERNI—This year of tidal wave, strike and amalgamation vote has been the most eventful in Alberni's 51-year history, says Mayor Fred Bishop—but few people seem to care.

He made the statement Tuesday night to the annual stewardship meeting in city hall, called by city council to report to the taxpayers on the events of the eventful year.

The meeting was attended by city council, two outside candidates, four civic employees, three members of the press and an audience of exactly five.

There were no comments, no questions and no criticisms from the audience.

Alberni Report:

Buying Land After Flood Still Problem

ALBERNI—One main problem is left over from the Good Friday tidal wave, Mayor Fred Bishop told the annual stewardship meeting in city hall Tuesday night.

The sparsely-attended meeting also learned building values have almost doubled this year and was warned additions and expansions at West Coast General Hospital will not come into being overnight.

Mayor Bishop said the single big post-wave problem is the purchase of property from the owners of land along the Somass River.

"This has been included in a major plan for a flood control program for the entire lower area of our city," he said. "We regret the delay in final settlement of this project as far as property purchases are concerned but we are still pleased with the progress so far."

Regular Joint Meetings

Referring to the merger vote, Mayor Bishop pointed out the two councils are holding joint meetings on the first Monday of each month to work out details of the 1967 union.

"I hope it will be possible for us to expand our joint services whenever feasible before 1967," he said. "We are planning a joint works yard and we could move into it before the cities are amalgamated."

The mayor also said: ● Alberni council shares the view of Port Alberni that ambulance operations should come under BCHIS. ● Several cabinet ministers have indicated recently the long-sought road link to Cumberland may be built about 1967. ● No borrowing or tax increase will be needed to finance the program to pave all remaining gravel roads and extend the pavement to curbs in certain downtown areas.

Building Permits Higher

Parks and properties chairman Ald. William Anderson said building permit values for the first 11 months of this year totalled $762,198, about $330,000 higher than for all of 1963.

He said the list of 111 items this year includes 29 homes and 13 commercial permits. Ald. C. M. Blair, the city's representative on the hospital board, said "considerable time" may pass before the hospital construction begins.

Health Minister Martin has given approval in principle to the pediatric ward, long-term nursing unit and other plans.

But architects must be hired and must prepare sketch plans, the government must approve the plans, working drawings must be made and approved, tenders must be called and awarded and a hospital district must be formed.

Nanaimo's Annual Survey

Firemen to Make Check Of Yuletide Decorations

NANAIMO—Within a week, officials of the Nanaimo fire department will begin its annual check of Christmas decorations in hotels, schools and other public buildings.

The firemen will be paying special attention to the position of Christmas trees and other flammable decorations. For example, they will see how far away the trees are from heat registers and make sure decorations are flameproof.

Fire departments and fire underwriters issue a long list of do's and don'ts every year before Christmas.

CHECK OF TOYS

In addition to trees, they touch on such things as toys made of pyroxylin plastic or operated by alcohol or gasoline, candles or cotton batting on trees, plastic or metal trees or decorations, stuffed-up fireplace chimneys and the burning of wrapping paper.

People who wish further information on the prevention of Christmas fire hazards should call the chief's office at SK 3-2141—please don't call the emergency number.

Because it's a bit difficult to copy down, one fire department formula can be published here—

Car Testing Unit

Valley Asks Encore

PORT ALBERNI—The Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce decided Tuesday it wants the volunteer mobile testing unit of the provincial motor vehicles branch to come back to this district for a longer stay.

Vice-president Felix Nicholson told the Chamber's weekly meeting that well under 10 per cent of the district's vehicles were put through the course. The Chamber decided to write a letter to the Alberni Valley Safety Council, urging the unit's return for a longer period. The letter will suggest another site as the entrances to several businesses were obstructed during the unit's visit last week.

Mayor Les Hammer told the Chamber the study of air pollution and its possible effect on the incidence of respiratory ailments was undertaken at the behest of Port Alberni central Island health unit.

PROGRESS MADE. Previous reports indicated Health Minister Martin initiated the study at the suggestion of aldermanic candidate George McNight.

The mayor said that, regardless of who suggested the probe, he was pleased to see progress. There had been a delay while plans were made to establish a control centre for the purpose of the survey.

FURTHER STUDY. A new dues structure proposed by the Chamber executive was sent back to a committee for further study. Some members, noting only about one-quarter of Alberni Valley firms belong to the Chamber, urged a membership drive instead.

Campbell River Teachers

Salary Pact Signed

CAMPBELL RIVER—The Campbell River district teachers' salary agreement for 1965 was signed by teachers and school board representatives Tuesday night during a meeting of the district school board.

Details of the agreement were not given. It is believed to be the first teacher-board settlement on Vancouver Island since several salary disputes went to conciliation and arbitration in recent weeks.

PLANS APPROVED. During the meeting, the school board approved sketch plans for a vocational addition to the senior secondary school. Trustees learned members of the district vocational guidance committee have agreed to accompany board members on a trip to Victoria to submit the sketch plans to the education department.

A howling southeaster reduced attendance by parents Monday morning when board officials opened the new Rockland school.

Tories' Flag Split Widens

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative split on the flag issue widened Wednesday as Quebec leader Leon Boucher called on Prime Minister Pearson to invoke the often-damned closure rule to shut off the 30-day flag debate.

Mr. Boucher, who has disagreed publicly with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker on federal-provincial relations as well as the flag question, electrified the Commons at the opening of the sitting by reading a blunt, 200-word statement in French.

He said the flag debate, dominated by English-speaking Conservatives who back the red ensign, has paralyzed Parliament and harmed national interests. If free speech was to be respected, the proposal for a maple leaf flag should come to a vote without further delay.

PARTY DISAGREES
Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill immediately said Mr. Boucher was not speaking for the party.

The Conservatives bitterly fought closure in the 1956 pipeline debate and made it a major issue in their successful election campaign a year later. Creditable Leader Reel Coadie said he strongly supports Mr. Boucher's call for closure.

'INTERESTING'
The government did not comment in the Commons, but Mr. Pearson told reporters in his office later that it was "an interesting proposal" coming from the deputy leader of the opposition.

A government informant said closure has been considered and rejected. It was felt that it would be inappropriate.

A majority of the special flag committee recommended Oct. 29 that a single red maple leaf design be adopted as the Canadian flag. Debate on the committee report has taken precedence over all other Commons business for the last eight days. Earlier stages of the flag battle took up to 22 days last summer.

Stanley Knowles, NDP whip, moved Wednesday that the House set aside the flag question and switch to government bills, such as the labor code, but his motion was defeated 132 to 59.

'One White Note Worth Two Black'

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The foreign minister of the former French Congo accused Belgium, the United States and Britain of causing the massacre of "scores of thousands of blacks" to save

"an insignificant number of whites" in the Congo. Charles-David Gnanou delivered a bitter attack against the U.S.-Belgian rescue operation launched from British-ruled Ascension Island. He said blacks had been murdered only for committing the "crime of being born in a country whose natural resources have become notorious."

Gnanou said that, as a child taking music lessons, he had learned that one white note was worth two black notes. Now, he said, "it seems that one white man, especially when he is called 'Christian' and he is a Belgian or an American or British, is worth thousands upon thousands of blacks."

Gnanou's reference was to Dr. Paul Cartouge, an American medical missionary who was among the white hostages killed in Stanleyville Nov. 24 on the day of the U.S.-Belgian operation.

UN BOILING

Reds Demonstrate Against Tshombe

ROME (UPI)—Italian Communists staged a noisy demonstration Wednesday against Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe even before his scheduled arrival today in Rome.

They threatened more and violent demonstrations today when he calls for an audience with Pope Paul VI and talks with Premier Aldo Moro.

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations Security Council rejected Wednesday a Soviet demand that it ignore charges by Congo Premier Moise Tshombe that some African countries, with Russian encouragement, were shipping military supplies to Congo rebels.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson countered immediately that the Russians were trying to erect a smokescreen against charges that Moscow was aiding the rebels.

Soviet chief delegate Nikolai Fedorenko did not deny the charges, but declared that the Soviet Union believed that the Congolese people were engaged in a "liberation conflict, a holy struggle."

FIGHTING IMPERIALISM
He said the Congolese rebels were fighting colonialist imperialism, in keeping with the basic principles of the UN charter.

After a long procedural wrangle the council decided by a vote of 7 to 4 to consider both sides of a dispute resulting from the recent mission undertaken by Belgian paratroopers in U.S. transport planes to rescue white prisoners held by rebels in the Stanleyville area.

VETO NOT USED
The four negative votes were cast by the Soviet Union, Morocco, Czechoslovakia and the Ivory Coast. The big power veto did not apply, since the vote was on a procedural matter.

In a move to head off any demonstrations, security guards barred the public from the galleries of the council chamber. There were reports that African nationalist groups in New

Vancouver

Voters Defeat Coliseum Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—William George Rathie was elected mayor for a second term in Wednesday's civic election, but his plans for the city were chilled by the electorate.

The mayor's pet project, a bylaw which would have allowed council to give Toronto Maple Leafs two blocks of downtown land for an $8,000,000 coliseum, fell far short of the necessary 60 per cent majority required to pass. (See story Page 1A.)

Former mayor Tom Alsbury ran second in the four-field mayoralty race. Alderman Marianne Linnell—the only woman in the race—ran third and William Shenton ran last.

A Rathie-supported "three-year plan" for the city, which would have given council power to spend more than $48,000,000 in city redevelopment in that period, was defeated.

FOUR ELECTED
Also defeated was a plebiscite to use millions received from Ottawa when the federal government took over the Vancouver International Airport for centennial projects.

Apparently elected to two-year aldermanic terms out of a field of 14 were Ald. Hugh Bird, Ald. Earle Adams, Ald. Ernie Broome and former alderman Orson Banfield.

Misfire Delays Space Plan

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A last-second engine misfire on a Titan II rocket dealt a severe setback to the U.S. man-in-space program Wednesday, postponing the final unmanned launching of the two-man spacecraft until January.

The National Aeronautics

and Space Administration also said the delay will shove the first manned Gemini flight into the second quarter of 1965. The three-orbit trip by astronauts Virgil Gribson and John Young had been scheduled for the first quarter, in February or March.

The trouble occurred Wednesday 1.7 seconds after the Titan II booster engines ignited. Loss of hydraulic pressure caused one of the two engine nozzles to swivel out of place and the engines automatically shut down.

A space agency spokesman said one of the nozzle tubes received a slight crack as a result of the malfunction. He said the entire first stage may be replaced to assure proper performance in an effort to qualify the rocket for manned flight. He said extensive checking of all systems must be completed before a decision is made and a new launching date scheduled.

Talks with Pearson

Wilson Plans NATO Meeting On Nuclear Arrangements

OTTAWA (CP)—British Prime Minister Harold Wilson plans to call for a special NATO meeting, possibly at ministerial level, to discuss new nuclear arrangements for the alliance, informed sources said Wednesday night.

Plans for such a meeting have not yet jelled, they said. Timing of a conference has not been decided.

Mr. Wilson and Prime Minister Pearson discussed for an hour Wednesday NATO nuclear matters and Wednesday night turned to bilateral and Commonwealth affairs.

Mr. Pearson indicated to reporters that Mr. Wilson would like to see Canada in any new NATO nuclear command which might be established. (See Page 2.)

He indicated this by saying that Mr. Wilson's ideas on nuclear arrangements within the alliance are "Atlantic."

Asked whether Canada would be prepared to support Mr. Wilson's nuclear command concept, Mr. Pearson said he would want to know a lot more about the proposals before any decision was reached on what Canada will do.

At a separate meeting, External Affairs Minister Martin and British Foreign Minister Patrick Gordon Walker discussed the same subject.

Canada has opted out of the U.S.-proposed NATO nuclear-missile fleet but sources said this country is prepared to consider any appropriate proposals for modifications in this plan. Sources stressed that Canada will not be involved in any nuclear scheme against its will.

"IT'S COLD!"
Mr. Wilson arrived here Wednesday from Washington with a booming "Hello, Mike" for Mr. Pearson, a long-time friend.

"God, it's cold here," he sang out as his hands touched the rails of the aircraft ramp leading from his BOAC Comet jet. The temperature was 21, a not unkind day for the capital in December.

Colonist 500 Fund

Veterans' Gift Replaces Usual Children's Party

The executive of the Victoria Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada has given a donation to The Daily Colonist 500 Fund instead of a Christmas party for members' children this year.

Secretary-manager John E. Radley said that in lieu of the party a donation to the needy would be made through the Colonist Fund and hampers would be sent as well to needy veteran members.

"May we wish you success with your venture once again, and for a bigger and better fund, herewith our cheque for $100."

Many groups, from Brownies to bridge clubs to employee organizations, have joined with the veterans in donations to the 500 Fund—as

Donations to date:

today's list of contributors further testifies.

Hundreds and hundreds of individuals made a contribution Tuesday night when they brought a toy with them to the giant Kinsmen Bingo in the Memorial Arena. The result — 2,500 toys for the 500 Fund Toy Auction, Dec. 18 at Maynard's auction rooms.

The toys were brought to Maynard's Wednesday morning by Art Kool of Reliable Transfer and are now stored on the second floor of the auction rooms at 733 Johnson.

Brooke Tomlin, manager, said Wednesday that he and his staff will take further donations at any time. "The more toys, the bigger the success."

All money raised by the auction will go directly into the fund—no service charges, no carrying charges, no auctioneer's charges.

The only "charge" associated with the fund is the good feeling received in helping those 500 families in the community who most need a boost at Christmas.

And the most direct avenue of help is a letter with a contribution to The Colonist 500 Fund, The Daily Colonist.

Two Found Dead, Man Shot

TERRACE (CP) — The bodies of a woman and a man with a string tied from his toe to a rifle trigger have been discovered in a motel cabin here.

The woman was identified as Rose Gertrude Johnson, 27, of the Hazelton area. The man was identified as George Franklin Kennedy, 50, a truck driver.

The woman's body bore no visible marks of violence. Police said the man died from a 22-calibre bullet in the head.

Sky Cop Thwarts Bank Bandit

ATLANTA (UPI) — A sky cop in a helicopter helped capture a bandit who bungled his second holdup of a bank that he had successfully robbed of $23,000 last June.

The trench-coat-clad gunman, identified as Keith Donald Moore, 24, of Atlanta, Wednesday took five hostages and tried to bluff police by threatening to blow up a school by remote control if anyone interfered with yesterday's attempt.

After his capture, Moore pleaded guilty at his arraignment in recorder's court to two counts of armed robbery, Wednesday's attempt and the $23,000 holdup last June 26.

During the bizarre attempt the trench-coat-clad gunman grabbed the hostages—two of them children—and led police on a wild 100 m.p.h. car chase through suburban streets.

All five of the hostages were released unharmed.

The end came for the daring bandit when air traffic Patrolman Joe Collins used his helicopter as a dive bomber to help box in the getaway car. "We dived at the car, trying to harass the driver," Collins explained.

"A detective in an unmarked car managed to partly block the car. We landed behind the car, boxing it in, and the four of us captured him," Collins said.

Mrs. Suzanne Ingie, one of those taken hostage, identified Moore as the same man who robbed the bank of $23,000 last June.
